I AM so sorry to bother you...however Bob needs some help with this..he keeps trying to write this info down but isn't quick enough before webtv shuts down COULD we please ask a favor of you ..there are 2 mails...IF you could please print them out for us - we would REALLY appreciate it...thanks AS ALWAYS susie

Bob,

St. George's Parish pretty much covers everything between the Gunpowder River and Susquehana River. That takes in what is now Aberdeen Proving Ground. I got this by typing in Search words "Thomas Gallion, early Maryland History".

THOMAS GALLION IN NORTH CAROLINA

INTRODUCTION

Early records have three Thomas Gallions and a Jacob Gallion residing in North Carolina prior to 1800. Complete records connecting these persons to their proper parents are incomplete. Certainly all came from Harford County, Maryland as descendants of a John and Mary Gallion. This is a history profile for each Thomas Gallion.

Thomas and Jacob Gallion were the first known Gallions in North Carolina. They came from St. Georges Parish in Harford County, Maryland. Jacob is the son of Thomas and Mary Young Gallion. The parents of this Thomas have not been identified. He is believed to be a brother of Jacob but no record or proof exists. Thomas and Jacob first settled in the Deep Creek area of Surry County about 1775-1778. This area is in present day Yadkin County.

Jacob Gallion

http://mail.charter.net/do/mail/message/preview?msgId=INBOXDELIM6853&l=en-US&v=... 5/7/2007

Jacob Gallion married Elizabeth Arnold 24 Feb 1755 at St. Georges Parish, MD. Sophia Gallion was born 10 May 1755 at St. Georges Parish, MD. Thomas Gallion was born 17 Mar 1758 at St. Georges Parish MD. Jacob's Will was written and dated 16 Jun 1812. The Will was probated February 1813. It list the following children: Sophia, Arnold, Thomas Gallion, Polly Smith, Jacob Gallion Jr., Elizabeth Douglas, Samuel Gallion, John Gallion, Rachael Kerby, Joshua Gallion, Amos Gallion and Young Gallion

OK Lows

- On 8 Dec 1778 Jacob Gallion enters 320 acres in Surry Co. on waters of Forbushes and Deep Creek. This is near where Thomas previously entered 400 acres.
- On 7 May 1784 Jacob sold 320 acres to Abijah Elmore.
- On 24 Nov 1790 a NC grant to Jacob Gallion of 250 acres in Wilkes County on Booton Branch of Fishes River. This is apparently on the border between Surry and Wilkes Counties at the north end of Surry County. The land records are in Surry County but the 1890 census was in Wilkes County.

Thomas Gallion (Burke Co.)

The parents of this Thomas have not been identified. His wife is unknown. His known children at this time were Thomas Jr., William and Mary. A Juceb's son?; would have been age 20 for this land

- On 28 May 1778 Thomas Gallion enters 400 acres in Surry Co., on waters of Deep Creek adjoining John McCollum Senr. and James Rivess.
- On 20 Sep 1779 NC grant to Thomas Gallion 400 acres in Deep Creek. This is the deed for the grant of 400 acres above which Thomas entered 28 May 1778
- On 6 Feb 1780 Joseph Reavis charged with fathering a male child by Mary Gallion, Thomas' daughter, and stands chargable with maintenance of same. James Reavis and John Williams furnished securities. This is the first known association of John Williams with the Gallion family.
- Thomas had a series of court appearances between 1780 and 1788. These were for jury duty, road maintenance, lawsuits etc.
- By 1788 Thomas is in Burke County.
- 2 Sep 1790 NC grant #1336 to Thomas Gallion on waters of Silver Creek in Burke County.
- 4 Mar 1805 Sale of 200 acres by Thomas Gallion of Burke County to Thomas Williams of land lying on waters of Deep Creek in Surry County being part of 400 acres formerly belonging to Thomas Gallion. Note: This confirms the same Thomas Gallion moved from Surry Co. to Burke Co.
- The 1815 Burke Co. Tax List has Thomas Gallion (probably Thomas Jr.) and William Gallion listed. This places Thomas Jr. and William Gallion in Burke Co. Thomas has probably died and his property occupied by William.

Both Thomas Jr. and William show up in Knox County, TN about 1840. One of Thomas Jr. sons, Joseph, left a detailed family history in the "Annals of Alabama" in which he indicates his father was Thomas Gallion (Jr.), his mother was Alvira Deal. The family Bible of James Lawson Sterling has Thomas Jr.'s wife as Mary Alvira Deal.

our Thomas Thomas Gallion (Surry Co.)

The parents of this Thomas Gallion are probably Jacob and Elizabeth Arnold Gallion. St. George Parish records of Harford County, MD list Thomas Gallion son of Jacob and Elizabeth Gallion, born 17 Mar 1758. Known children are; Jacob, Thomas Jr., Sophia, William and Daniel. There is no known evidence to connect this Thomas to another set of (ok) for Jocol + Eliz moto parents.

The biography of Samuel H. Galyean, Wells County, Indiana, list his grandfather serving 4yr.- 6 mo. in the Revolutionary War. Evidence shows two Thomas Gallions served in the Revolutionary War.

Thomas Gallion on Sept 1775 Capt. Charles Anderson's Co. #3 as a Pvt. Function is own?

It is not known which is this Thomas.

This Thomas probably arrived in Surry County, North Carolina between 1781 and 1785. His first son, Jacob, was born about 1785. His second son Thomas Jr. was born 22 Feb 1787. He is listed in the 1790 Surry Co. census. toma

John Williams Will of 4 Apr 1993 names son-in-law, Thomas Gallion, as co-executor. He named daughter Margaret Gallion as a beneficiary. This establishes that Thomas was married to Margaret Williams.
John Williams had a relationship with the rest of the Jacob Gallion family. Records mention Jacob Gallion Jr., Margaret (William) Hallion &

- John Gallyan and Thomas Gallion (Burke Co.) prior to his move to Burke County.
- Thomas named his children after Jacob's family; namely Jacob, Thomas Jr. and Sophia.
- 13 May 1793 John Williams to Thomas Gallion 85 acres on Deep Creek adj. said Williams home tract of 340 acres.
- Thomas Gallion is listed in 1800 Surry County census.
- 11 Mar 1802 Sale of 85 acres by Thomas Gallyan to Joel Leaky of land lying on the North Fork of Deep Creek. This is the same land acquired by Thomas Gallion from John Williams in 1793.

He next purchased property (R13-T17-S20) in what is now Wayne County, Indiana on November 1, 1811. This is located west of present day Greens Fork, Indiana. His son, Jacob, purchased adjoining property at the same time. At that time he declared his residence as Preble County, Ohio. Since Indiana was not a State in 1811, all land purchases were made through the Cincinnati, Ohio Land Office. His land was only a few miles from Ohio. It is not clear whether he actually made a physical move from Ohio or just settled and then purchased the land.

Thomas was one of the early settlers of Wayne County, Indiana. His descendants spread into Henry, LaPorte, Kosciusko bet this is 2nd ghomes and Wells Counties in Indiana.

Thomas Gallion (Rowan Co.)

The parents of this Thomas are probably James and Ruth Gilbert Gallion. The 1776 census for Susquehannah Hundred, Harford Co., Maryland list the family with ages; James 50, Ruth 57, Thomas 19, Gilbert 16, Elizabeth 12, Cumfort 9, Rachel 4. Thomas is believed to have married Catherine Yount about 1784 in Hawkins, Tennessee.

- Records show that this Thomas served in the Revolutionary War. The length of service has not been determined.
- 10 Feb 1785 Admin. of Estate of John Yont decd. granted Thomas Gallion who Qualified & gave Pd 200 bond with Ninian Bell Hamelton Security. (Rowan County). This helps to establish this Thomas was married to Catherint Yont.
- The Rowan County 1790 Census list 1 male over 16, 2 males under 16 and 3 females. This is the first known record in North Carolina.
- 20 Dec 1791 Grant #2167 to Thomas Gallion 300 acres in Rudy Creek, Rowan County.
- 12 Oct 1799 Thomas Gallion of Sulivan Co., TN to Francis Williams. 200 acre on Muddy Creek.
- 20 Oct. 1799 Thomas Gillion/Gillean/Galian of Sulivan Co., TN. to Munus Griggs of Rowan for 100 pounds, 100 A Reedy Creek.

Other records show that James Gallion, Thomas' father, resided in Tennessee. The 1797 Tax List for Sullivan Co., TN list a James Gallion. There are no known records indicating this Thomas ever resided in Surry County, North Carolina.

SUMMARY

This seems the best fit for connecting the three Thomas' to their parents. Any additional evidence will be appreciated please E-mail me your comments and additional evidence. William Galyean

Again !! thank you SO much

Bob.

Some more info that may explain some things. I will try to call you Friday after I get back from work. Sorry I missed your call today.

Information

1650 to 1692 Time Period. our family

There are very few Vital Records in MD before 1692. The resources for this period include:

Wills: Oldest existent will in Maryland is from 1635. Extracts of Wills through 1777 have been published. (There are a few errors of course, but overall very useful). Wills, in additon to naming heirs provide information on tracts of land owned, sometime a chain of title, neighbors, and the witnesses. The actual wills and copies are available at MSA. Wills and Probate were Providence, not county, level records up until 1777.

Inventories and Accounts of the Perrogative Courts from 1674 to 1777 have be extracted and published. As sterling was in short supply, IOUs seem to have been commonly used. These extracts will often list 100s of persons in debt or (usually fewer) receiving payments from an estate along with limited information on heirs. It will commonly have the executrix of estate showing her new husband. Copies of the actual inventories are available at the Maryland State Archives (MSA). It is very interesting to see what personality our ancestors owned.

Land Grants. A significant resource in searching early Marylanders. Up until 1680, the proprietorship granted 50 acres for each person transported into Maryland to reside. Thus most people coming into Maryland or transporting others into Maryland took advantage and requested warrants for land, naming the individuals transported. In some cases, these were for family, often for indentured servants, and in some cases it seems for business deals and family/religious groups. Thus a significant number of all persons coming into MD in that era can be found named in these requests for land warrants. This information has been extracted and an index of names, dates of warrants (which may be later than the date the person entered MD), the person claiming the warrant, and cites to the liber/folio of the records. It is available in "The Early Settlers of Maryland" by Gus Skordas. Land grants and patents continued to be issued after the headright system was phased out. In some cases landowners had resurveys done to increase their holdings by incorporating any adjacent vacant land. I have seen land patents and surveys as late as the 1850s.

Land Records. Baltimore Co land records are in existance from 1665 on. These land records often will have Grantor and his wife named. Some records can contain very useful genealogical material, including references to now non-existant wills, listing of heirs, and tracking the title to tracts of land. Land could pass through several generations in a family without any deeds, so tracking tracts of land is one method to help identify a family.

Court and Legislative Records. Records of court cases and actions of the legislature can sometimes provide early genealogical material.

In addition to the records discussed for the earlier period, the following records can be found.

Church Records. In June of 1692, the Church of England (Episcopal) Church was designated as the established church of Maryland. One of the responsibilities of each Parish was to maintain a register of births, deaths, and marriages in the Parish. Baltimore County originally had three parishs, St. Pauls, St. Johns, and St. Georges. The existant records for St. Pauls Parish seem to start about 1717, Records for St Johns and St. Georges start at 1696. In additon the Quaker Meetings kept their own set of minutes, which includes marriages. Additional Parishs were erected in the 1700s to serve the increasing population and provide for easier access (shorter trips). These include St Thomas Parish (est. 1732) at Garrison Forest, and St James Parish (est. 1750) at Monkton. Since many early settlers of Baltimore Co came from Anne Arundel County, it is often useful to check the Anne Arundel Co. parish records or the Quaker meeting records.

Tax lists exist for various years. About the earliest are for 1699 to 1704 for Baltimore Co.

Militia memebership lists, List of petitioners to move the Courthouse from Joppa Town to Baltimore Town in 1768, and other misc. lists of persons signing documents or belonging to organizations have been published in various books and articles.

that our family 1777 to 1850

The end of the Proprietorship in Maryland brought about many changes in the records for the state. Wills and probate information, was recorded as the county level rather than the state level. Thus the wills starting in 1777 were kept by the county courts. Counties also began to issue marriage licenses. Baltimore Co. 18th century marriage licenses have been published by several sources. However the 19th century marriage records are at the state archives and a card file exists there indexing the Baltimore Co marriage license to 1851. Land Records and church records continue to be prime sources of information, along with census and tax lists. The War of 1812 had major impact on Baltimore County. In 1814 many eligible men were drafted or enlisted to serve in the militia to defend against the British attack. There are a significant number of land bounty warrants issued beginning in 1851 and also pensions and widow pensions that were issued for those that served the few months or more when Maryland was under attack. Roosters of the militia have been published. While Maryland was not as involved in the Revolutionary war, as other states, there are a number of Baltimore residents or men born in Baltimore Co who served in the Revolutionary War and received pensions. Also publication of newspapers in Baltimore provides obituaries, notices of marriages and other useful information.

Hog Was Expected Top 1,000 Pounds

December 14, 1933—"BIG PORKERS AND BIG CORN YIELD REPORTED. Will Davis' Hog Expected To Weigh 1000; Six Acres Yield 400 Bushels of Corn."

The unsettled condition of the weather has slowed up the butchering of the stock of hogs that are scattered all over this country, but several reports are coming into The News office of many large hogs that are being killed. The largest one reported this week was by Abe Edwards of Salem who killed one which tipped the scales at 511, dressed. Abe is an ex-soldier, and has long been a sufferer from the effects of a bad dose of gas he received from the German gas attack during the first months of his service overseas, but he takes great interest in growing big hogs as evidenced by the one reported this week.

Several people have visited the home of Mr. Will Davis above Antioch on the Lowgap road to view the monstrous hog he is fattening. And all who have seen it say it's a show for anyone to go to.

Some of the visitors have measured the hog with the following results: 24 inches across the shoulders, 48 inches high, and seven, feet nine inches long. He is so fat that his eyes are covered with heavy lids and he can only stand up a short time.

According to an approved rule of estimating the weight of a hog from its measurements it is said this one will weight 1,008 pounds. Mr. Davis is going to butcher him when the weather turns cold and report his weight to The News.

Frank Holder, of Round Peak is one of the champion hog raisers of the county as well as a good farmer. Some days ago he killed four of his porkers which dressed 2,000 pounds. They were corn fed and the meat is of the highest type.

Speaking of corn, Mr. Holder had six acres of corn this year from which he gathered 400 bushels of as fine corn as ever went into a crib. He is a great believer in the value of lespedeza as a cover crop and his corn land had been given a growth of this legume, using very little fertilizer.

He estimates that he also secured more than 15 tons of hay from his lespedeza field.

Market Sales

In 1946 Mount Airy's seven tobacco warehouses last season sold approximately 15 million pounds of tobacco at an average of $42.54 per hundred according to J.S. McMillian, supervisor.

Ex-Football Player Remains Athlete, Despite Illness

By BRANDY CHAPPELL

Staff Writer

John Galyean was a football player all through high school at North Surry, and in college at Gardner-Webb. Then he was struck by an illness called rabdomyolysis that breaks down his muscular system, preventing him from participating in any contact sports.

Galyean went on with life without football, and became a car salesman. Then one day it hit him.

"I wanted to be in the golf business," said Galyean, who literally packed up and went to Myrtle Beach.

Galyean arrived in Myrtle Beach with no job and no place to live, but he wanted to give it a shot. It was a risk, but Galyean said that he goes by the saying, "What if I got caught sittin' at home."

After establishing a residence, he got into the Golf School at Myrtle Beach, and three years later has completed a six-year program, the Golf Professional Training Program (GPTP).

He has traveled all over the United States, helping build two golf courses from the ground up. One of those is The Reserve at Pawley's Island, S.C., Galyean worked on the Pawley's Island course with Greg Norman.

Galyean is now the pro at Myers Park Country Club in Charlotte, but said he is more like a general > manager than a player and at least he is still involved in a type of athletics. He works 55-60 hours a week and is trained in all aspects of running a club.

One thing that Galyean would really like to do is come back to Surry County and build a state-of-the-art PGA course with a little help of some "good ol' boys" from the Mount Airy area willing to invest in such a project.

Brandy Chappell/The Mount Airy News ATHLETE AT HEART: Surry native John Galyean is now a golf pro since having to give up football due to a degenerative muscular illness.

THOUGHTS ON OUR ANCESTORS 415 YEARS OF GALYONS

by

Robert L. Galyon 2007

For this father to son history I have at least two sources of information: a document, a very good guess (couldn't be anyone else), I knew them, etc.

There are too many people to thank in this space. There are also too many other pieces of information on post-its, scraps of paper, pictures, courthouse records, census records, etc., to put in here. So if anyone wants help, I'll be glad to share what I have.

A few people I must acknowledge, first, George P. Galyon, my cousin Jimmy Galyon, my mother Dorothy, Violet Galyon Holt, Robert Bailey (Roane County historian) and, friend of 50 years, John Blalock (our families have crossed on many occasions); in addition, Surry Co. historians Donna Edwards, Agnes Wells, Teresa Smith, others; Betty Jo Galyon Tilley, Dot Galyon, Leatrice Wagner of Washington state, Paul Kelley of Knoxville, TN, and others I can't remember just now.

So far it starte in France but most all socuments and actual direct line information comes from England; for the last almost thousand years I found many including Galyons that are not in our direct family, e.g., "Gallion: son of Gall Hopefully to preserve for our families a record of our history, there is much more that's not here because it is not in our direct line.

The Gælliennes were Celtic-speaking people who migrated through the Alps and into France. The original spelling was Le or De Gallienne. They were believed to have been French Huguenots (Protestants) who migrated to England Sometime during the 1500s. However, I've also found them bæck to the 1300s in England. There are Gælliennes today in the Channel Islands (specifically in Gurnsey) who trace their lineage back to the 1300s.

America, our line

Joseph Gallion is not the first Gallion in America. Jane Gallion married a Thomas Paine in London before 1635. Possibly an aunt, Jane was widowed before 1635 and then married Gov. Thomas Mayhew, Govenor of the Massachusetts Bay Colony. This was in London in 1635. The couple retired to Martha's Vineygrd and lived a long life.

The English anglicized the spelling of the name and several variations: Gallion, Galyon, Galyean were found. English census records group all Gallions-Galyen under the title Gallienne to indicate the French origin.

Some early Galliennes in England are: Abraham Gallienne or Gallian and his Wife Mary (1563) and John Galion, the shoemaker, who left Dieppe, France, for Rye, England, im 1572. However, the name Galyen was mentioned in Geoffrey Chaucer's Canterbury Tales written about 1382 in the passage--"we knew he who olde Esculapius, and Deiseorides, and eek Rusus, Old Ypocras, Haly, and Galyen..." "Family legend" has 3 brothers leaving England for the colonies. However, what is known is that Joseph Gallion and his wife Mary settled in Hartford County Maryland near the Bush River near Baltimore in 1664. At that time Hartford County was known as St. George Parrish, Maryland.

William Gallion, born 1592, London, date of death unknown. Parents unknown. He married Joan Palmer 1615, Chigwell Essex, England, date unknown, of her death.

He was called Marcus and shows up in the 1866 Knoxville City Directory as a Mabry Conductor on the E.T.V. and GRR, living at 57 Mabry St., Knoxville, Tenn.
 - m. Lefier, dates unknown but in Will of 1812 he was alive. Died young.

In about 1804 the entire family except parents Jacob, Elizabeth and son Young left Surry County, N.C., for Grainger County, Tenn. This was a big wagon train as there were lots of brothers and sisters plus their wive's children. We have information on five brothers but what happened to the others? I have heard from a couple of ole timers that they went on to Texas?

In census records Jacob (the father) was descended from Thomas of St. Georage's Parish, Maryland. Thomas was the son of John John was the son of Joseph, the original American settler. His father was William of London, England, thus the straight line decendants to this point.

The five brothers who stayed in Græinger County, Tenn. were:

Thomas, John, Joshua, Jacob, and Amos. Thomas went to Overton County, Tenn. Jacob, Jr. to Jackson County, Tenn. John went to Roane County, Tenn., then to Bradley County. Joshua went to Lincoln County, Tenn. and later to Wayne County, Tenn. Amos went to Sevier County, Tenn.; later Young joined him, making it six brothers staying in east Tennessee. John is our relative.

(6) William was born in Surry County, N.S. 1793. He married Jane King, born 1792, place unknown. I have seen William and Jane's children's names in the Roane County courthouse records. Abraham Jr. born to William and Jane lived in Roane County, Tenn; their children moved to Arkansas.

Special Note: The large family leaving Surry County, N.C., as Gallions arrived in Tennessee as Galyons. There's probably an interesting story as to how this came to be. It took me two years to figure this out.

Also, Abraham was born to John, Surry County, N.C. in 1804. He had one son, James P., first cousin to John Preston Galyon. James P. had one son, Jonas. Jonas had one son, Nathaniel Parks Galyon. Nathanial had one son Douglas of Greensboro, N.C., born 1923. Abraham died 1860,1870 Roane County, Tenn. Married Martha (Patsy) Parker Roane County, Tenn., 11/27/1825. Children: Elizabeth, born 1827, James P., born 1830, Abraham, Jr., born 1840; Loussa, born 1856; Martha (Montooth) born 1864, died 1900s; Sarah Catherine, born 1861.

Abraham J., born 1827 in Roane County, Tenn., married Martha Easter in that county 4-11-1848. His parents were William Galyon and Jane King. By 1850 Roane County, Tenn. census, Abraham J. has 3 children. By 1860 Arkansas census they have 7 children. He was oldest son of William and Jane King Galyon (our relative). George, born 1852 Roane County, Tenn. John born 1854 Roane County, Tenn. (Note: our relative John Preston Galyon, born 1833 to William and Jane. William was son of John Galyon of Surry County, N.C.)

Abraham was also John's son. Abraham J. Galy on's daughters were: Mary J. 1848, Roane County, Tenn., married Joe Alexander(?), Elizabeth, born 12/10/1855, in Roane County, Tenn., married 12/31/1880 to Simon Scott, died 8/19/1939; Belle, born 1858 in Arkansas married James Scott(?)

There are Abraham, born 1804, Abraham J., born 1827, Abraham, Jr., born 1846. Are there any more Abrahams? I've just listed three and they are related but it's æ little confusing. Maybe someone can clarify.

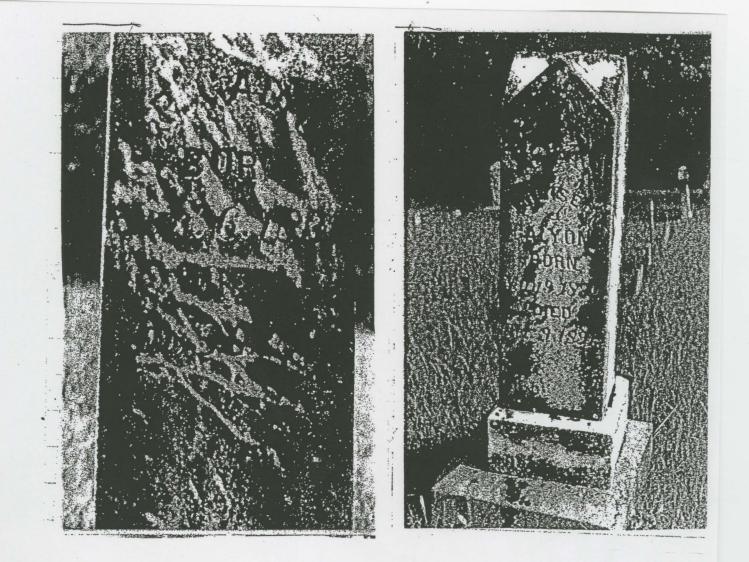

Addition: William (Joseph's father) died 1635 Middlesex, England. Joseph (son)who migræted to America was christened æt St. Olæys Church on Hart Street which isstill there (3 blocks north & west of the Tower of England). Gallions in London were there since 1330 but in England since 1167.

We tch the image on a screen in the I use a radio beam to guide the ; just guided it directly into the keeping the target in the center of sion picture. We couldn't miss. war," Galyon says.

"That technique was part of the technology that later led to the development of NASA. But the main thing that made space flight possible was the invention of small computers. A computer can do more math in a minute than a human can do in a lifetime," Galyon says.

Galyon recalls meeting Joe Kennedy Jr., the brother of President John F. Kennedy, during the war.

Joe Kennedy's dad was the U.S. ambassador to Britain, Galyon says, and the young Navy pilot had a lot of political connections.

"Kennedy was the only Navy pilot who was allowed to participate in a special mission involving planes loaded with 33,000 pounds of a powder form of nitroglycerine. The plan involved putting the plane on course to special targets. Then the pilot would bail out of the plane while it was still over friendly territory. The plane then continued on behind enemy lines and exploded on the target. They were extremely accurate," Galyon says.

"But it also was an extremely hazardous mission because of the highly explosive nature of the plane packed with nitroglycerine. Anyone who completed one of these missions got the distinguished flying cross," Galyon says.

The night before he was to fly one of the missions, Kennedy joined Galyon and a few of his friends in a drink of rye whisky in front of their locker. "Kennedy told us that all of the pilots were supposed to get a free fifth of rye whiskey and a fifth of bourbon whiskey each month," Galyon says.

"We talked about a lot of things but the thing I remember most was our conversation about the whiskey. Our whiskey rations were stolen by a couple of guys. A captain and a sergeant were charging us $25 a month to join an officers club and 50 cents a shot for our whiskey. I learned later that after the war those two guys used the money they got selling our whiskey to start

From page one he had to do was pilot the plane on course and then parachute out at the appropriate time to be picked up by Americans waiting for him in friendly territory.

But air turbulence caused a spark on Kennedy's ill-fated plane. "Kennedy's plane loaded with 33,000 pounds of nitroglycerine exploded into a million pieces. They said it was estimated the tremendous explosion had a bursting radius of 3,000 yards," Galyon says.

Kennedy's dad, Galyon says, had wanted to groom his oldest son, Joe Kennedy Jr., as president of the United States. As it turned out, the Kennedy family then shifted its sights to John Kennedy, who eventually was elected to the U.S. Senate and later as president, Galyon says.

Although he has had seven strokes and can't move his left leg. Galyon is still alert and has no difficulty speaking.

sergeant to $75 a month as a cadet. But as a second lieutenant my salary increased to $300 a month," Galyon recalls.

Early in the war, General Jimmy Doolittle set a limit of 25 missions for each pilot before returning to the states for a year. Galyon says. Later in the war, when missions became less hazardous, he increased the missions to 35. "That's how I got to fly 35 missions," Galyon says. "By the time I spent some time back in the states, the war was over."

"The Germans had more and better-trained pilots than the Americans. But we bombed out their fuel supplies. We heard stories after the war that the German pilots cried because they had no fuel to meet our attacks. We could have lost the war if we had not been successful in destroying their fuel supplies," Galyon says. On each mission, Galyon learned to face the possibility that he wouldn't come back.

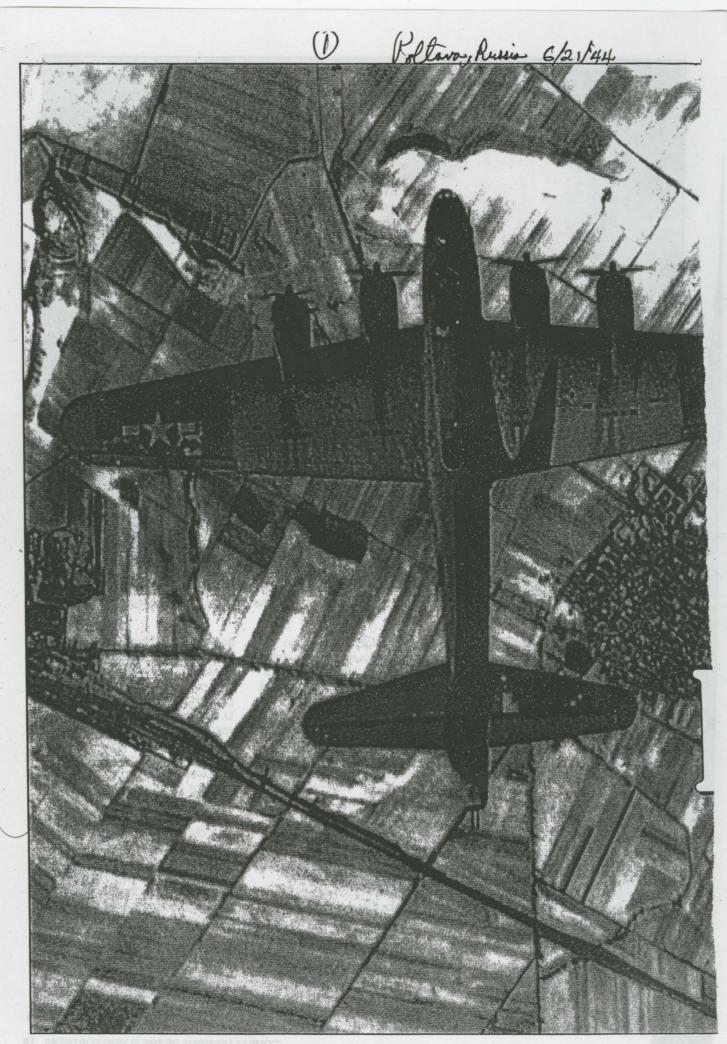

"I lost a lot of friends," he says grimly.

several jobs but eventually specialized as a contract bricklayer. "I did mostly commercial construction. But my best client was a residential builder who built a lot of expensive homes at Ladue in St. Louis County. I did more than $250,000 a year in business with him for several years before he died of cancer," Galyon says.

Galyon and his wife, Dorothy, have been married for 52 years. They are the parents of three sons, Bob Galyon of Key West, Bill Galyon of northern California and Dick Galyon of Boston.

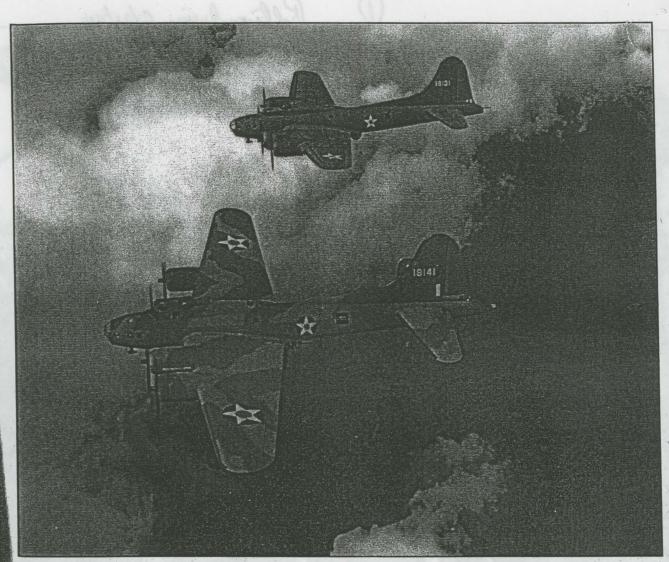

Galvon spent the last seven years of employment before retirement working at the Missouri Division of Design and Construction.

"I remember after the war I was asked for my occupation and I said proudly that I was a bomber pilot. But the guy just laughed and said he didn't have a lot of calls for those jobs these days. So my war experiences meant absolutely nothing after the war," Galyon says. "We just went on about our "Tiny" Nisbet attacked an Italian cruiser and the fourth bomb in a stick of four very nearly hit the target, but the vessel turned at the last moment. A Bf 110 attacked and badly damaged one of the B-17's engines. Stokes made it back safely to Shallufa where "Chiefy" Murray and Tony Barwood, bereft of spares, repaired the inlet manifold with elastoplast and plaster of paris!

On 8 January 1942, Frank Sturmey took AN521 "K-King" aloft for a fuel consumption test, but at 20,000 ft oil pressure was lost in the No. 3 engine. Tony Barwood saw it drop to zero and immediately informed the captain. No. 3 could not be feathered as there was no oil left in the engine sump, due to a broken oil pipe, so it ran away and eventually caught fire. He went aft to warn the rest of the crew whom he found playing cards, blissfully unaware of their predicament! Barwood had no sooner said "we have a problem" when he saw two parachutes floating behind them. A look up into the cockpit revealed that Sturmey, Franks and Mulligan had bailed out! Barwood picked up a chest parachute and bailed out at 400 ft. Lt. "Kipper" Baring, a Royal Navy ship recognition expert, broke both his ankles on landing. Flt. Sgt. Mennie bailed out of the astrodome hatch and was killed when he struck the tail and Sgt. Tuson died after he bailed out too low.

On 12 February 1942, 90 Squadron was disbanded at Polebrook and the Shallufa detachment became part of 220 Squadron serving in that theater. The two surviving B-17Cs were flown to India but never flew any operations. The two B-17Cs were handed over the USAF in December 1942. So ended an unfortunate period in RAF Bomber Command operations using the Fortress I. Crews had discovered that high-level daylight precision bombing was not the method with which to defeat Nazi Germany.

COMBAT MISSIONS OF THE FLYING FORTRESS 19

n June 1944, the US 8th Air Force shuttle mission to the Kiev area, code-named Frantic, was impressive. The 13th and 45th Wings of the 3rd Division based in Norfolk and Suffolk, England, would bomb a synthetic oil refinery just south of Berlin and then fly on to landing fields in the Ukraine. Their return would be made via Italy and France. The 95th, 96th, 100th, 388th, and 390th BGs had flown the first shuttle mission — to Africa — in August 1943 and would be joined on this second shuttle by the 452nd BG (the 15th Air Force in Italy had flown a shuttle mission to Russia on 2 June but the 8th was forced to wait until 21 June, because of the demands made upon it by the Normandy invasion).

Each of the 163 Boeing Flying Fortresses in the Frantic force was equipped with a longrange bomb bay tank for their journey to Russian airfields at Poltava and Mirgorod — all east of Kiev. Two groups of P-47s would escort the Frantic force from just off the German coast to Stendal where 352nd FG Mustangs would continue to escort them to Ruhrland. Meanwhile, the 4th Combat Wing and a composite from the 3rd Bomb Division would lead the 8th Air Force to Berlin with the 1st Bomb Division next in line, then the 2nd Bomb Division with the rest of the 3rd Division, bringing up the rear.

After Berlin, the bombers would return to England — leaving the 13th and 45th Wings to fly on to Russia, escorted all the way by a "Ramrod Shuttle" of 16 P-51s of the 486th Fighter Squadron, 352nd Fighter Group and 45 Mustangs of the 4th Fighter Group, led by Col. Don Blakeslee, which would land at Piryatin.

News of the second shuttle soon spread and some ground crew members learned that they would be flying with the shuttle force to service the bombers when they touched down in Russia. Mustang ground crews would fly as waist gunners and would service the P-51s. At least one ground crewman would fly in each bomber. The number of ground crews alarmed the sensitive and highly secretive Russians and the shuttle only > got the green light after several problems had been ironed out by diplomatic means.

Capt. Harry H. Crosby, 100th Group Navigator and veteran of many of the "Bloody Hundredth's" missions, recalls the shuttle mission, "The 0130 briefing was orderly, swift — a strange note of festivity perceptible. Besides the usual views of the target, briefings about the group, wing, and division rendezvous, and > reports of enemy resistance, there were also a few words to be said about which Russian ranks to be saluted. On the black board was a space for the estimated time of our return. Col. Bennett, the air executive, jokingly inserted 4 July in that space, little realizing how prophetic he was.

The disastrous B-17 Russian Shuttle Mission during June 1944

"Each ship had some particular item to take care of for the group. Some groups carried the engineering kits, some the field rations, others the luggage of the P-51 Mustang pilots who were going to escort us all the way. The plane whose safe arrival was most desired was the one which carried our entire supply of toilet paper. At takeoff time there was a taxi incident, which dashed the hopes of two crews for this jaunt. Naturally, the only officer who spoke Russian was on one of the crews."

The bombers flew the northern route to Germany, climbing northeast to a point above the Frisian Islands, then heading due east as though flying to southern Denmark.

Abe Dolim, a navigator in the 94th BG, which flew the strike on Berlin on 21 June, then returned to East Anglia, leaving the main force to carry on to Russia.

John A. Miller, 17-year-old gunner (having lied about his age when he joined up at 16) in Lt. Larry Townsend's crew which made the mission to Mirogorod, Russia, in June 1944.

All went according to the flight plan until the bombers reached the German coast near Cuxhaven where four aircraft in the 452nd BG were involved in a mid-air collision.

Harry Crosby continues, "We penetrated the German coast between Flensburg and Bremen. During the trip to the target, the most impressive sight was our glimpse of Berlin. As we passed by, we all vocally pitied the poor devils who drew it as their target for the day. There was the usual cloud of flak to wade through, and there's no rougher job. We saw a few B-24s go down as their turn came."

Altogether, 935 bombers attacked Berlin. In the 94th BG formation, Abe Dolim waited for the bomb bay doors of his Fortress to open. "Our bomb run was a straight 40 miles long at 90 knots groundspeed due to a stiff headwind, instead of a tailwind as briefed. We unloaded our delayed action GPs and incendiaries over the Charlottenburg district while heavy flak from the 900 plus 88mm cannon around Berlin gave us the most accurate and sustained fire we had encountered to date. We watched one of our bombers drop out of formation and head for the deck. As we turned away from the target we saw many brightly blazing pin points of fire in the heavily built up residential area below."

Despite the intense fighter cover, the Luftwaffe managed to make a few attacks on the Berlin force. Near the capital, Me 410s swooped on the rear of the 1st Division formation and made several attacks on the B-17s. Altogether, 19 Fortresses and Liberators, and six fighters were shot down in the Berlin area attacks.

Meanwhile, the shuttle force, consisting of the 13th, 45th and Composite Wings, headed for their target, the Ruhrland synthetic oil plant some 50 miles south of the capital. Bombs fell from the bellies of the 388th and 452nd BG Fortresses and were joined by those of the 100th BG. Harry Crosby recalls, "The bombardier hit the switch. Lights on the instrument panel flashed. The plane jerked upward as the wings were suddenly released from their 6000 lb burden. A sudden turn to the left. Eardrums cracked as we lost altitude to confuse the flak. Bomb bay doors closed. The flak, black, ugly and angry, grew worse. We'd been over these gunners for 20 minutes and many of the planes were racked by bursts." Altogether, 123 B-17s bombed the primary target and 21 bombed Elsterwerda. A lone B-17 bombed Riesa after experiencing a bomb rack malfunction.

After the bombing, the supporting B-51 group was relieved 50 miles southeast of Poznan by Blakeslee's P-51s which rendezvoused with the bombers over Leszno at 1113 hours. At 1240 hours, 50 miles southeast of Brest-Litovsk, 25 Bf 109s came in for a head-on attack against the bombers. One P-51, six German fighters and one B-17, BTO in the ETO in the 452nd BG, were lost. Lt. Alfred R. Lea, the navigator, recalls, "We rejoined the other aroups after the bombing. While over Poland, those in command decided it would be good for the morale of the people in Warsaw if we went off course and flew far enough north to fly over the city. This caused riots in the streets; the first Allied planes to fly over since their own did it in 1939! Near Swory and Biala Podlaska we were attacked by 15 '109s and despite Lt. Frank Sibbett, a valiant P-51 pilot who went down defending BTO in the ETO, we were shot down. The Poles gave Sibbett a hero's burial...three of our crew were so badly wounded they could not escape the German forces and were taken prisoner. I and six others, including S/Sgt. Robert Gilbert, a 4th FG crew chief, evaded capture." They were picked up by Polish partisans of the 34th Regiment with whom they served as infantrymen for 40 days, attacking German forces and pillaging Russians. Finally, they were escorted to Russian-held territory, thence with the Red Air Force from base to base to Poltava.

Harry Crosby was grateful for the Mustang escort after the target. "We lost a few thousand feet of altitude, which improved living conditions. Then eastward across Germany we went and into Poland. Our P-51 escort was with us, and what a feeling of security their presence brought. The Mustangs were eager for a fight. We could hear the pilots chattering over the radio as they looked for opposition. In eastern Poland they found it. Just as we passed a few miles south of Warsaw, the skies changed. Huge fair weather cumulus piled up high and awesome. From behind them suddenly careened a flight of enemy fighters. Bf 109s! After 7_hours of flying, the bomber pilots had relaxed to loose formation, but at the first sight of the enemy they snapped back into position like the snap of a plumb line. The Mustang pilots yelled with delight and dove after the bogies, ratio about eight to one, P-51s to '109s."

The Luftwaffe fighters were engaged and two enemy fighters were destroyed but the Mustang pilots could not press home their advantage because of fuel restrictions. Disregarding orders, Kid Hofer continued to chase the Luftwaffe on the deck. He was listed as MIA until word filtered through that he had landed in Kiev.

The B-17s' fuel supplies were also precarious, as Harry Crosby recalls, "The trip's duration was just about the limit of our fuel duration. When we reached Kiev, four planes had to peel off and land. Our maps were unsatisfactory and the radio facilities just as bad, so that finding our field was difficult. The relief was tremendous, when, after about eleven hours of flying we landed at Mirgorod, our destination."

Altogether, 144 B-17s landed in the Ukraine; 73 at Poltava, and the remainder at Mirgorod. The 64 remaining P-51 Mustangs landed at Piryafin. Harry Crosby adds, "Each plane was met by an American master sergeant and a Russian enlisted man. For all we knew he was a general, so everybody saluted everybody else and shook hands all round. We were gathered up in army trucks, taken to a tent headquarters for interrogation and indoctrination by Col. Witten, the 13th Wing CO. Then we were caravanned to the town where we were to be quartered and deposited before a bettered school house. Half an hour later we were asleep."

At Poltava some 73 B-17s in the 45th Wing, six transports, three photo recon planes, and a P-38, had touched down safely. Later, when crews were attending de-briefing sessions, Soviet anti-aircraft batteries were heard close by. Crews dismissed the barrage as a practice but they were, in fact, firing at an He 177 high-altitude reconnaissance aircraft which had shadowed the formation about 400 miles into Russian territory. The Heinkel was too high even to be seen and flew off into the clouds to report its findings. The Fortress crews thought no more about it and went to bed after servicing work finished at 2200.

The first warning was at 2335, when the Russians told the US HQ that enemy aircraft had crossed the Soviet front lines, headed for the Poltava area. Air raid sirens sounded and men took cover in slit trenches. At 0015, flares were dropped. About ten minutes later, 60 German bombers made the first of two bombing runs on Poltava. The Russian defenses offered little in the way of resistance and the 80 Ju 88s and He 111s were able to drop 110 tons of bombs on the airfield at will. The first attack lasted until 0145, during which time the Luftwaffe dropped 15 tons of demolition and short-delay demolition bombs from medium to high altitudes and then, after a 15 minute pause, the attack was renewed. For 20 minutes the Luftwaffe dropped 78 tons of antipersonnel bombs and 17 tons of incendiaries. Aircraft and installations were strafed. Ammunition dumps were blown up and the fuel dump, containing 450,000 gallons of fuel, exploded in an angry orange mushroom of flame and debris. At 0220, photo aircraft made a series of three blinding flash explosions as they took photos of their bombing.

The heaviest loss in personnel occurred among the Red Army men and women stationed on the base. They completely disregarded the bombing and attempted to extinguish fires and move aircraft. Some 30 Russian soldiers were killed, including several Red Army women, some of whom were manning an AA battery which received a direct hit, and 95 wounded. American casualties were incredibly light, considering more than 1000 US bersonnel were billeted in tents and their only protection was slit trenches. One American was killed instantly by a stick of bombs that fell squarely in the hospital area and another died later as a result of his injuries. About 20 others received minor injuries.

Eitely n

, The early morning light revealed hundreds of butterfly bombs littering the airfield. American and Russian personnel were told not even to approach them and Russian sappers exploded them with long poles. Maj. Gen. Alexander Perminov, commander of the airfield, was among those who inspected the damage. Skeletal remains of the Fortresses were clustered around the airfield like carcasses. Some were only a collection of engines and twisted propellers which marked the spot where once bombers had stood. Altogether, 47 aircraft were destroyed and 29 others riddled with machine gun bullets and bomb fragments. Soviet losses were one aircraft destroyed and 25 damaged. It would take three weeks to get the airfield fully operational again.

The German raids led to serious disagreements at high level between the Americans and the Russians. The Americans complained about the lack of fighter support, radar, and searchlight facilities at the bases. The Soviets pointed out that they were all badly needed at the Front. Gen. Carl Spaatz was to concede later that the Poltava raid was the "best attack the Luftwaffe ever made on the AAF." To avoid further losses, to the 13th Wing Fortresses at Mirgorod and to the Mustangs at Piryatin, Col. Witten and Col. Jeffrey decided to move to airfields further south. Shortly before dark on 22 June, the B-17s flew low enough to escape the German radar screen, to Kirovograd and Kharkov and the Mustangs to Zaporozhe, Odessa and Chingueue. That night the Luftwaffe dropped flares over the deserted fields and bombed under a chandelier for 1 hour 50 minutes.

Harry Crosby continues, "It was bad enough to have lost so many planes but there were other problems. The only fields in Russia long enough for us to lift bombs off vere masses of craters. Since the Germans knew where we were, we couldn't stay for long. Sometime or other our small remaining force would have to make a break for it. While our leaders were deciding what to do, we kept pretty close to HQ. For one thing, we were restricted to certain parts of Kharkov. We couldn't see the heavily bombed parts. We couldn't trade with the people. We couldn't take pictures except near our headquarters. The Russians were pretty close-mouthed about a number of their secrets. We learned from the master sergeants who serviced our planes that once we Lend-Leased a P-39 to the Russians they immediately modified it and no American was permitted to see it again. Also, we were denied entrance to the armored C-47s the Russians were flying."

Meanwhile, their main base was repaired and on 24/25 June the P-51s and B-17s returned to Pirvatin and Mirgorod respectively to prepare for the return flight home via Italy. Harry Crosby recalls, "Kharkov gave us a grand farewell. All the women who had them wore gaily colored dresses. Some of them dug up rouge and lipstick. And they all hurled roses at our trucks. Little girls gave us bouquets. And the entire populace called not merely goodbye (Dos svedanye) but also Farewell 'till we meet again (Poka du solve stra).

*At Mirgorod it was evident what an attack we had missed. The runways had been repaired but the field itself was pitted like the side of a collander. And all the time we were there the demolition squads were exploding delayed action and dud bombs. That evening we flew again at low altitude to Kirovograd. For our supper we had C-rations. Yet that supper clings to my memory. It was cold, so we ate in the waist of the plane. It was dark, so we turned on one little flashlight. Nobody said very much. We would see a hand reach out into the arc of light, pick up something and withdraw. There was only breathing, or a quiet word or two. Outside was Russia. Tomorrow was Italy. We were very young. The United States was very far away. We had seen so much, fought so long."

At around 1215 hours on 26 June, 72 Fortresses took off on the next stage of the shuttle to Foggia, Italy, via Poland, Hungary and Yugoslavia. At 1405, Blakeslee's P-51s, now equipped with wing tanks, took off from Piryatin and rendezvoused with the B-17s at Brodye, east of Lvov, Poland, at 1607. The Fortresses bombed the synthetic oil refinery at Drohobycz in Poland. Crews reported seeing a large column of smoke and flames shooting skywards after the attack. Hofer and three other P-51 pilots were forced to abort and return to Russia. Harry Crosby recalls, "The flak was bad. We lost no bombers but one plane lost an engine. Capt. Bucky Mason was in the plane and having a high time. We all heard him call by radio to Col. Jeffrey's plane and ask to talk to Maj. Rovegno, our doughty old ex-Marine pilot, now our engineering officer. When he answered, Bucky said, "Hey you old coot, you better have your hammer and nails ready. This duck I'm riding is about to fall apart."

The Mustanas broke escort at 1851 over the coast of Yugoslavia, leaving the B-17s to fly on across the Adriatic to Italy. John A. Miller, a 17-year-old gunner in Lt. Larry Townsend's B-17 Lady Luck in the 100th BG, recalls, "We flew the course as briefed. It took us near Ploesti and at 5000 feet we flew just east of Bucharest where we got a wonderful view of that ancient city and its bridges over the river flowing through its center. South of Bucharest we set a course to the west for Italy. To this day I will never understand why we were not attacked by any enemy fighters! The credit has to go to God and our guardian angels."

The Mustangs and the 13th and 45th Wings stayed at Foggia for a week. At Foggia main repairs were carried out to aircraft damaged in Russia and during the raid on the oil refinery. Some aircraft were too badly damaged for further combat and had to be sent back to England by the much coveted ATC route via Cairo and Casablanca. The appropriately named Belle of the Brawl, in the 388th BG, touched down at Payne Field, Cairo, with over 100 linen patches glued over holes in its fuselage.

The 8th AF B-17s flew a mission to the marshaling yards at Arad, Rumania, on 3 July with the "Little Friends" flying some five escort missions while in Italy. On 5 July, the B-17s took off from Foggia and the P-51s from Silinas on the final leg of their shuttle. Crews flew quite low over Rome and then headed for the marshaling yards at Beziers in France. The P-51s rendezvoused with the bombers at 1235 south of Toulon at 20,000 ft. The B-17s crossed the target at 1330. Only one enemy fighter was sighted but it got away. The Mustangs broke escort near Chateauroux when relieved by England-based P-51 groups, who escorted the bombers all the way back to East Anglia. A total of 13 fighters was lost by both groups. The entire tour covered 6000 miles, ten countries and 29_ hours of operational flying with ten enemy destroyed.

The 100th BG touched down at Thorpe Abbotts at 1730 hours. "Red" Bowman, the Group S-2, wrote: "Distance, 7000 miles, 34_ hours flying time, not counting the Arad mission. Hundredth's score: Four good targets destroyed, no loss to enemy." At the de-briefing the crews were upset to hear that their tours had been raised during their absence from 30 to 35 missions although it was rumored that the war would be "Over by Christmas."

It wasn't. On 6 August, 76 Fortresses in the 95th and 390th BGs flew another 8th Air Force shuttle mission to Russia. They hit the Focke Wulf plant at Rahmel in Poland and after the bombing flew on to Mirgorod, scene of such devastation two months before. During their stay, they flew a raid to the Trzebinia synthetic oil refinery and returned to Russia before flying to Italy on 8 August, bombing two Rumanian airfields en route. Four days later they flew back to Britain on the last stage of their shuttle. Toulouse-Francaal airfield was bombed on the flight back over France. This third shuttle by the 8th Air Force proved more successful than the disastrous shuttle of June 1944 with not a single Fortress being tost.

AVNESVILLE — Streams of red offset with brilliant yellow flashes cut through the night. The image had haunted Bob Galyon for countless nights since his year in Vietnam, but he couldn't pin down the source of the vision until his recent visit to the exhibit of Vietnam War photos at the Haywood County Arts Council.

"I see this picture down in Waynesville, and I said, That is my nightmare right there that I've had for 37 years," he said. "I was just floored. I couldn't believe it. Every time in my dream, it was a black, black night with yellow flashes with red streaks just like in that photo. It was tracer rounds."

Like Galyon, numerous local veterans have visited the exhibit of 60 photos taken during the war in Vietnam by residents of North Carolina, and most expressed similar reactions to the display.

Dear - ---

It has been about a year since we corresponded. I had to replace my computer this summer but was able to restore all my data. We plan on leaving for Florida for the winter the day after Thanksgiving.

This winter I will be working on a manuscript for the Galyean/Gallion family. Very little new has developed in the North Carolina records. It is too bad we don't have early birth, death and marriage records. I think I have everything that is available. I want to make copies of this manuscript available in North Carolina. What are the most appropriate places to send copies of this manuscript in North Carolina?

My records support the following conclusions but there is not 100% proof. That may never be forthcoming.

- Thomas Gallion #1 entered land on Deep Creek in 1778 and purchased the land in 1779. This Thomas seems to be a relative of Jacob Gallion, possibility a brother, but no proof or record exists. Also, he was a neighbor. Records suggest he is the same generation as that of Jacob. Numerous court records seem to relate to this Thomas since he was a landowner. He even had a connection with John Williams. John Williams posted a bastard bond for Joseph Reaves for Thomas's daughter Mary. Later he sold his Surry Co. property and moved to Burke Co. His spouse is not known.
- Thomas Gallion #2 purchased land in 1784 and 1791 in Rowan Co. He later moved to Sullivan Co., Tennessee and sold his Rowan County property in 1799. There is no record of this Thomas living in Surry County or any connection with the John Williams family. His wife is believed to be Catherine Yount.
- 3. Thomas Gallion #3 was married to Margaret Williams. John Williams Will in 1793 is the first record of this Thomas. Since there are no earlier records that can be connected to this Thomas, I believe Thomas and Margaret must have lived with her parents. There are records showing a relationship between John Williams and other members of Jacob Gallion's family, namely John Gallion and Jacob Gallion Jr. There is not enough evidence to connect another Thomas as the son of Jacob and Elizabeth Arnold Gallion. The process of elimination would place this Thomas and Margaret that moved to Wayne County, Indiana as the son of Jacob. Also, The Wayne County, IN Thomas named their children after the Jacob Gallion family.

Sincerely,

Bill William Galvean

On August 26, 55 BC, the Romans invaded England. How does that relate to Galyons!? It doesn't. Since several people I have sent what I could find have said, "I enjoyed what you have found, but didn't read all of it." Thought I'd throw in about the Romans to see if all were paying attention.

As to 847 years of Galyons, that is true: A Galyon was found in England in 1160, a Gaylean in 1167, Chaucer mentioned Galyen in 1382. Abraham Gallienne and his wife Mary in 1563. John Galion, the shoe maker, who left Dieppe, France for Rye England in 1572. I have found many other but none that I can connect to each other until William, 1592. I have found all father to son from then to today.

The Gallienne's were Celtic-speaking people who migrated through the Alps and into France and then England. The original spelling was Le or De Gallienne. There are Gallienne's today in the Channel Islands (Guernsey especially).

The English tried to make the name English so the people would try to fit in. So the list is Galyean, Galyen, Galyan, Gallion, Galyon etc.. These are all the same family group and exist today in America.

America

Jane Gallion was the first Gallion in America and was married to Thomas Paine from London before 1635. Possibly an aunt to the first American settler Joseph. She was widowed and then married Governor Thomas Mayhew. He was the Governor of the Massachusetts Bay Colony. The couple retired to Martha's Vineyard and "lived a long life".

Now to father/son in America. Although I have to start in England.

William Gallion was born in 1592 in London and died in Middlesex, 1635. Parents are unknown. He married Joan Palmer in Chigwell, Essex England in 1615. Her death is unknown.

In America

1. William's son, Joseph Gallion, born 1633 in London, was christened at St. Olays Church on Hart Street in London, which is still there (3 blocks north & west of the Tower of London). In 1664, he moved to the area of Aberdeen Proving Grounds, Maryland. This was on the Bush River. His first wife was Mary, second wife was Alice, third wife Sarah. Dates unknown. Joseph died in 1699.

2. Joseph's son, John Gallion was born in 1670. He married Mary Wright, date unknown. He probably died in 1731.

Joseph.

Test: James Fowler, Samuel Fowler, Sarah Fowler, William Hunter.

3. His son Thomas Gallion, born 1707, married Mary Young. Date unknown.

4. Thomas's son, Jacob, born 12/11/1733 in Maryland, (died 1812 or 1813). Here is the first big shift for our family in America. Until now they settled near or in Aberdeen Proving Grounds, Maryland, St. George Parish, near the Bush River.

Jacob married Elizabeth Arnold, (b.3/4/1737), in 2/1755. Died in Wilkes County NC, year unknown. They left Maryland and settled in Surry County, NC near Mt Airy. I am adding more information on them because it shows more from our early history in America, than most.

Interesting note: Daniel Boone lived in Yadkin County which is just south of Surrey County NC in the years 1755-1775. Also, Davey Crockett was born in 1800 in Unicoi County, TN, which is 1 days ride to the west of Surry County, NC

Jacob & Elizabeth's children in order of birth are as follows:

(a) Sophia, (b. 5/11/1755 in Maryland). This was three months after their marriage. So, the question is was this the reason they left Maryland for the west? Religion was a very big issue of that time.

(b) Joshua, b.1775, married 1794. Died in Wayne County Tennessee.

(c) Thomas, b. 1758, death unknown. Married to Margaret Williams, unknown date. However, I have located quite a bit of Surry County history on Thomas and the Williams family. Also there was apparently two other Thomas Gallions in Surry County making a total of Three. Two of these were in the Revolutionary War. So there must have been other Gallions from Maryland who moved to North Carolina. Here I can't connect the dots!

(d) Arnold, dates unknown but he is in 1812 will.

(e) Polly (Smith) Williams (again Williams). Alive in 1812 will.

(f) Jacob Jr. moved to Jackson County Tennessee, Northwest.

(g) Elizabeth in will of 1812, other dates unknown. Married an Edward or Douglas or Douglas Edward?

(h) Samuel, b. 1762 in Virginia. Note: Virginia is very close to where Jacob & Elizabeth settled. He married Molly. Alive in 1812 will. They had a son, Samuel Jr. married Elizabeth. He was born 1802 or 1803, died 1880. Samuel Sr. also had four daughters.

5. (I) John (our John), born 1768 was murdered in Bradley County Tennessee 1843. He had three wives and 16 children. Wives: 1) Rachael Kinly, Surry County 1790(married). 2)Vedy Smith, Grainger County Tennessee, 1819(married). 3)Rhonda Mitchell, son, John Jr. born in Grainger County Tennessee 3/10/1818.

(j) Rachael, dates unknown. Alive by will of 1812.

(k) Amos, b. 1777 or 1778, Surry County. Married Ellen who was his first wife. Second wife was Mary. He was in the War of 1812. Land Grant in Sevier County TN, 1826. Probably died before 1840. Had a son Thomas, b. 1830 in Sevier County TN.

(1) Young Gallion, b. 1781, Surry County NC, d. 1860 in Henderson County NC. By will of 1812, Young received the farm including the two Land Grants after Elizabeth died. Young is found in Burke County NC. He had a son Daniel (b. 1811). Then Gilbert in Sevier County TN. The he was in Buncombe county NC, Henderson County NC and then Sevier County TN and is known as "Old Dan". He married Catherine and had a son, De Marcus, b. 1861 in Knox County TN. He was called Marcus and shows up in the 1866 Knoxville City Directory as a Mabry Conductor on the E.T.V. & GRR, living at 57 Mabry St., Knoxville, TN.

(m) Lefier, dates unknown, alive by 1812 will, but died young.

In about 1804 the entire family except parents Jacob & Elizabeth and son Young, left Surry County, NC for Grainger County, TN. This was a big wagon train. There were lots of brothers, sisters, plus spouses and children. We have information on five brothers arriving in Tennessee, but what happened to the others? I have heard from a couple of old timers that they went on to Texas, but don't have documentation to confirm this.

The five brothers who stayed in Grainger County were: Thomas, Joshua, Jacob Jr., John and Amos. Thomas went to Overton County, TN., Jacob Jr. went to Jackson County, TN., John went to Roane County TN., Joshua went to Lincoln County, TN., then to Wayne County, TN. Amos went to Sevier County TN. Later, Young joined him making six brothers in east Tennessee. John is our relative.

The large family leaving Surry County NC. As Gallions arrived in Tennessee as Galyons. There's probably and interesting story as to how this happened. It took me two years and many detours to figure this out.

6. John's son, William, was born in Surry County NC., in 1793. He married Jane King, (b. 1792), in Surry County, NC. He died somewhere between 1870-1880 in Roane County TN. I have seen their children written in pencil in the Roane County Courthouse. Our relative is John Preston Gaylon. Another son is Abraham. Abraham's children possibly moved to Arkansas.(?) Now it gets confusing for me as there are 3 Abrahams. One is born to John in 1804 or 1805. One to William and Jane, above, in 1827, who married Martha Easter in Roane County TN., in 4/11/1848. The other Abraham Jr. was born 1846 but Abraham's children included Abraham

Jr.1846, maybe? More proof needed to figure this out.

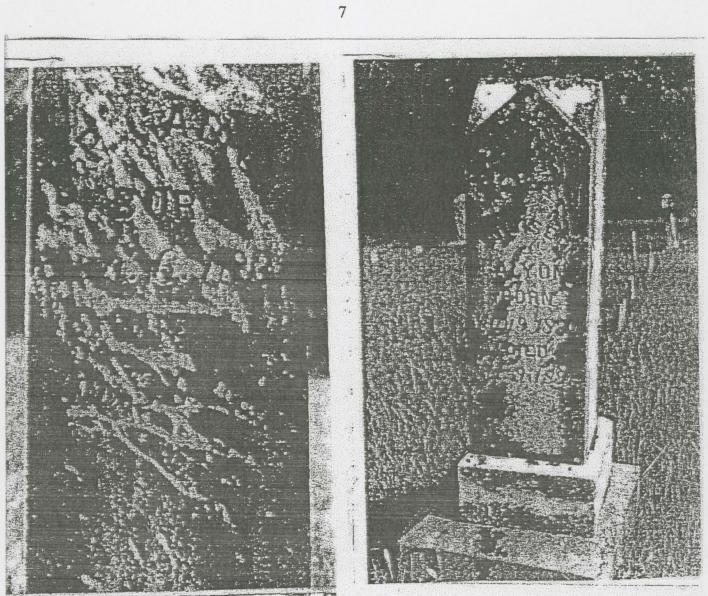

7. John Preston Gaylon, son of William, (b. 1/16/1831, d. 11/30/1898), married Sarah Brackett (b. 5/9/1839, d. 10/9/1891) in 1855, in Kingston Tennessee. The Brackett family still live in this area. As best I can find they lived in north and a little west of Sweetwater, TN. On the Roane & Louden County line. I saw their grave at the Forshee's Church in Roane County. John and Sarah great grandfather & grandmother with Nan, Joe and Catherine.

Joe and Nan shared a house and never married. I talked to a man who knew them. They lived in Roane County between Sweetwater and the Forshee's cemetery. In pictures Joe looks the same throughout his life.

8. William Morgan Galyon, John Preston Galyon's son, (b. 10/31/1858, d. 2/5/1928), married Nancy Johnson,(b. 4/1/1862, d. 12/29/1932), on 2/19/1882. The Johnson's were also an old family, first in South Carolina then Tennessee. The two families were well known to each other. I saw their graves in Forshee's Cemetery. William was blind the last 30 years of his life.

"That technique was part of the technology that later led to the development of NASA. But the main thing that made space flight possible was the invention of small computers. A computer can do more math in a minute than a human can do in a lifetime," Galyon says.

Galyon recalls meeting Joe Kennedy Jr., the brother of President John F. Kennedy, during the war.

Joe Kennedy's dad was the U.S. ambassador to Britain, Galyon says, and the young Navy pilot had a lot of political connections.

"Kennedy was the only Navy pilot who was allowed to participate in a special mission involving planes loaded with 33,000 pounds of a powder form of nitroglycerine. The plan involved putting the plane on course to special targets. Then the pilot would bail out of the plane while it was still over friendly territory. The plane then continued on behind enemy lines and exploded on the target. They were extremely accurate," Galyon says.

"But it also was an extremely hazardous mission because of the highly explosive nature of the plane packed with nitroglycerine. Anyone who completed one of these missions got the distinguished flying cross," Galvon savs.

The night before he was to fly one of the missions, Kennedy joined Galyon and a few of his friends in a drink of tye whisky in front of their locker. "Kennedy told us that all of the pilots were supposed to get a free fifth of tye whiskey and a fifth of bourbon whiskey each month," Galyon says.

"We talked about a lot of things but the thing I remember most was our conversation about the whiskey. Our whiskey rations were stolen by a couple of guys. A captain and a sergeant were charging us $25 a month to join an officers club and 50 cents a shot for our whiskey. I learned later that after the war those two guys used the money they got selling our whiskey to start.

My brother, Bill, has a daughter and lives in California. Brother, Dick, has a daughter and a son, Max, who is 12th generation Galyon. They live in Boston.

From the beginning in America, almost all the pioneers including our relatives lived a very, very hard life in the woods. Little to no roads, stores, crude or no transportation. They moved over incredible distances of no roads(or any we'd recognize), hospitals or bridges, motels, etc., through dense country. I don't really think we appreciate how hard, dangerous and difficult this was. Then only to start from scratch in lands they didn't know.

Of course, this was after the local Indians had been moved out or killed, or more accurately... lied to. Not a pretty picture but that certainly doesn't take away from how hard it was for the settlers. They created a country, our country. In general this was because in Europe millions couldn't own land, worship their religion, in other words, they were oppressed. So quite a story and legacy in our family.
