

DIVIDE HONORS WITH DRAYTON

Blanketeer Girls Win Both Games While Boys' Team Are Losers to S. C. Outfit

Chatham's basketeers of the Winston plant split honors with two strong teams from Drayton, S. C., Dec. 2nd and 3rd. The first games were played in the Elkin gymnasium. The girls won their game by a score of 23-15 while the Drayton boys walked away with a 41-22 decision.

The girls' team, ranked as leaders in Southern basketball, waged a close game with Chatham holding a lead throughout.

Lineback topped the scoring for the winners while the defensive play of the teams proved outstanding.

Chatham grabbed the lead early and held 10-5 advantage at half-time.

The South Carolina boys moved away in the first minutes to play and were in front, 22-8, at half-time. Lacy paced the scoring for the visitors with 19 points, while

CHRISTMAS ISSUE ON DECEMBER 23rd

The special Christmas issue of the Blanketeer will be ready for distribution not later than Friday, December 23. Every employee will receive a copy of this paper. If you have a picture or news item you would like to have appear in this issue, please turn it in to your reporter not later than Dec. 16. Let's cooperate and help to make your paper better.

Employees Taking Active Interest in Safety Contest

Employees of the Elkin plant are taking a great deal of interest and pride in the Safety Contest being conducted by the First Aid department under the direction of Mrs. Vernon Holcomb, R. N. Mrs. Holcomb reports that although at the present time all departments have lost points and there has been a number of loss time accidents, a great improvement has been made in the number of accidents in every department. Each employee is trying to make their department have the best record. Let's keep trying and each one get a Safety badge soon.

Sam Atkinson, with the "deer" around his neck, top photo, proved a pretty good hunter when he and Sam Neaves, both of the Elkin plant, recently went deer hunting in Pisgah National Forest, near Asheville

WOOL DEPT.

Beach Bell, Exalted Supreme Commander of the Tall Story Stooges, reports the formation of a new corporation—Stockton and Brandon, Fowl and Feather Beds. The Corporation was formed the first day of the hunting season, due to the accuracy of the big shots whose names it bears. The set up is as follows: Sam Brandon's little boys haul the day's shoot in little red wagons from the fields to the nearest country road where Sam's trailer is loaded and driven to the highway. Thence a two-ton transfer truck carries on to the factory. Bell is publicity agent and says see him for a soft and downy Bob White feather mattress. They also have three sizes of drum sticks and bottom prices on the choicest cuts of quail.

Now is the season when "My grandmother died," or "My wife fell and broke her arm," and "I'll have to take off tomorrow." In other words the bird season is here.

Pinch hitting for the regular wool room reporter, who now has a "Fat" job on the grave yard shift, takes a little extra notice in order to get the up-to-the-minute news. We'll be back with a flash in the next issue. Watch for an interesting item on Senator Dobson.

To start it right our two bosses, Messrs. Hatch and Page, stole away for a few hours' shooting up at Mr. Laster's farm, the very first day. Mr. Laster says he sure hopes they'll come back again, "cause they're mighty nice boys and didn't do his birds a bit of harm." "Bugs" says that's not true. He got one and Mr. Hatch scared a couple so badly they'll never grow any more.

Mr. Watt Cheek, who has been living with his father while he built an addition on his own home says that the addition is now finished and that he has moved back. He wants us to come and see him just as soon as the new rooms are put in order. We're going to do that thing, Watt. Keep the jug handy all the time. There's no telling when we'll drop in.

Miss Ruth Campbell, of Cooleemee, is spending this week with Mrs. Tom Lewis, of Jonesville.

Wonder if anyone can tell us why Mr. Paul Haynes struts around so big here lately.

Mrs. S. A. Foster entertained her son, Charlie, on his 15th birthday, Friday, Dec. 2. Forty young people enjoyed the party.

Curtis Hall is having a time, he says he just as soon sit on naked springs as weave this upholstery.

Mr. Tucker (you all know him as the pattern builder) went visiting the other day and got a terrible fall. Dorothy, you should have your steps repaired.

We have all been wondering why Rat Darnell is on the midnight shift. Someone said he is running a dairy for Roxie and Woodson Newman is delivering the milk. Nice work, if you can get it, boys.

Mr. Bob Hall reports a fine hunting trip last Thursday. He and two other men went hunting down near Dobson. He says he brought back fifteen rabbits. It must have been a great hunt.

Mrs. Hall looks mighty sleepy today, but sitting up roasting 15 rabbits would make anyone sleepy.

Mrs. Ethel Couch is a patient at the local hospital. She is recovering nicely.

Recreation Building Appreciated

Do I appreciate the New Recreation Building? This question should be uppermost in the mind of every employee of the Winston-Salem plant. A nice building has been provided for the benefit of every employee both old and young alike.

The lower floor is equipped with a pool table, ping pong table, card room, reading room and showers for men.

The upper floor is for women. Nice upholstered furniture, piano, nickleodeon, magazines and showers have been bought for the use of the women. It also provides space for the meetings of the Lucy Hanes Chatham clubs.

We have just passed through the Thanksgiving season and I wonder how many of us were thankful for having a nice congenial Company for whom to work, and one who is so thoughtful of each employee. There is an art in living together, working together and playing together. So let us work fair, live fair and play fair.

This building is open twenty-four hours a day, the door is never locked, and is provided for employees ONLY. Our Company has gone to considerable expense to equip this building so let us all treat it as we would our own homes. You do not appreciate it if you abuse the property.

I ONLY HEARD

We all know what Juanita Billings is going to get for Christmas. Harvey won her Christmas present off of a punch board. Didn't you, Harvey?

Uncle Dave Masten says he might have to go to the County Farm, since his potatoes and turnip greens have all been devoured by a man whose initials are CCP.

The neighbors on Elk Spur street are complaining about the barking of the dogs belonging to Dick Chatham and Has Laffoon. Anyone wanting to buy a dog see these parties.

One man was overheard to say the other day just before the Drayton-Chatham girls basketball game, when asked if he was going to the game, "Sure I'm going, we never have any good vaudevilles in Elkin."

Those tried and found wanting usually weren't wanting to be tried.

Congratulations

Miss Beatrice Burcham of the Weave Room office recently won the first prize of six hundred dollars in the Elkin Tribune subscription contest. She also won three extra prizes, amounting to one hundred dollars. Mrs. Franklin Folger and Miss Willie Guyer won second and third prizes, respectively. These young ladies are to be congratulated.

Elkin Man Injured When Cars Crash

Elkin, Dec. 3—Lloyd Dowell, about 30, an employee of Chatham Manufacturing Company, suffered numerous lacerations on the face and lost a tooth in an early morning motor accident yesterday.

He was driving in from his home to his post of duty when his car crashed into a car which he was trailing as the driver suddenly stopped.

Dowell is in Hugh Chatham Memorial hospital for treatment.

NEW HOME

Mr. J. W. L. Benson and family, of Winston-Salem, will move into their recently completed new home on Hospital Road Dec. 15.

Sweet and Saddest

These were voted tops as the sweetest words in the English language:

- I love you.
- Dinner is served.
- Keep the change.
- All is forgiven.
- Sleep until noon.
- Here's that five.

And the saddest were:

- Out of gas.
- Dues not paid.
- Funds not sufficient.
- Rest in peace.

New Recreation Building Opened

The new recreation building of the Winston-Salem plant held open house, November 19. Pool, ping pong, round and square dancing were enjoyed throughout the evening. Music for the square dancing was furnished by the Butner Brothers String Band of the Mill. Due to the downpour of rain less than three hundred employees enjoyed the opening. Refreshments were furnished by the Lucy Hanes Chatham Clubs. Another party will be planned for the holiday season.

L. H. C. Club Entertains Basketball Teams

Members of the Lucy Hanes Chatham Club No. 1 entertained the boys and girls basketball teams from Winston-Salem, and the boys and girls teams of Spartanburg, S. C., Friday evening following the games played at the Elkin gymnasium. The guests were invited to the club house where sandwiches, cakes, pickles and coffee were served buffet style from a prettily appointed table. The Christmas motif was used. Misses Pauline Morrison and Beatrice Burcham assisted with the serving. Sixty guests enjoyed the hospitality of the club.

Miss Aldie Biddix and Melba Poole Entertain at Lovely Party

Misses Aldie Biddix and Melba Poole were joint hostesses when they entertained, November 25, at the recreation building. Dancing was enjoyed throughout the evening. Guests were members of the Lucy Hanes Chatham Club and their friends. Out of town guests were Misses Beatrice Burcham, Pauline Morrison, Roette Cockerham, and Mrs. Pauline Masten Pardue, of the Elkin Club, and their escorts.

Punch and sandwiches were served at intermission. Music was furnished by the nickleodeon and by Miss Eleanor Joyner at the piano. Forty guests enjoyed the hospitality of the hostesses.

A former patient was traveling alone and ordered a room with two beds.

"A room with two beds, sir? But you are alone, are you not?" "Yes," replied the traveller. "It's just that I want to enjoy the silence from the other bed."

Playing College

"Let's play we are all in college," said little Tommy. "All right," replied Buddy, "I'll get a pennant and a pipe and you get Daddy's checkbook."

OPPORTUNITY jobs

Next time you hear anybody beefing about there being no more opportunities left in America for the ordinary man, tell them about the experience of Morris Kirschenblatt and his three sons. It came out in a legal proceeding in New York a couple of weeks ago, and to me reads like a story of the old pioneer days.

The Kirschenblatts came to this country from Warsaw, Poland, last April. They brought enough money, saved up through years, so that they could put up a bond to guarantee that they would not become public charges. Nobody told them there wasn't a chance to get a job in America, so in their ignorance they went right ahead and got themselves jobs.

Morris, the father, is working as a watchmaker for $35 a week. The oldest son, Abraham, has a job at $25 a week. The second son, Jerome, has a $22 job. Henry, eighteen, is on a job which pays $15 a week. The youngest son, David, is only six, so he doesn't contribute anything to the family income, which is now $95 a week.

There is little likelihood of the Kirschenblatts becoming public charges, it seems to me.

CAPACITY skill

To be sure, the Kirschenblatt family brought with them the capacity for work. The father has a special skill which is in demand. I do not know that he has any more skill than American-trained watch-makers have.

I am sure of one thing, however, and that is that the highly-skilled craftsman in any line who is willing to work honestly at his trade is not to be found in the ranks of the unemployed. More than one big employer has told me many times during these recent difficult years that he found it impossible to get enough really skilled workers.

I hear many persons kicking about the American system, which they hold responsible for the large number of persons on relief and the general complaint about unemployment. There is nothing wrong with the system. There is a great deal wrong with the widely-propagandized idea that the way to get ahead is to take life easy, work short hours and do no more than enough to get by.

Morris Kirschenblatt and his sons were reared in a different tradition. It used to be the American tradition, first put into words in Poor Richard's Almanac, written by Benjamin Franklin two hundred years ago. In those horse-and-buggy days American boys were taught that hard work and thrift were the keys to success. I think it is still true.

TRAINING handicap

I am a bit concerned over that youngest Kirschenblatt boy, David, the six-year-old. He is going to grow up as an American citizen, under American laws, go to American schools and in every way live the life that American boys of his age live. But I wonder whether he will have the same opportunity when he grows up that his father and his older brothers have found in America.

Certainly his father, presumably his brothers, began their training for work at a much earlier age than Davy will be allowed to go to work in America. The European system still apprentices boys of ten or twelve to master craftsmen, so that they begin to learn how the useful work of the world is done while they are still young enough to learn.

The American idea is to keep boys in school until they are almost grown men, and then turn them loose to start earning a living. The European-trained craftsman has a head start on them. He is a master of his trade when the American boys are just beginning to learn it.

For the genius and the intellectual who will do better in the white-collar occupations or the professions, there is much to be said for the American system. But I cannot help feeling that it handicaps a great many youngsters whose capacity is for the sort of work which does not call so much for schooling as for skill in the use of hands and tools. They are the ones who really create wealth.

LIBERTY equality

One thing the Kirschenblatts found in America, and which little David will grow up to consider the natural state of everybody, is liberty. In the dark and troubled countries of Central Europe, where he came from, few of the people have anything which we of America would call liberty, and none of his race has it at all.

In America David Kirschenblatt will find that the fact that he is a Jew does not put him under any more restraint than his Christian schoolmates are under. He will not be denied civil and social rights because of his racial strain, he will be free to think as he pleases, speak as he pleases so long as he does not break the simple rule that he must not do anything to infringe on the equal right of anybody else to do the same. If he doesn't like the government, he can say so as loudly as he pleases and nobody will put him in jail.

We take our liberty so much for granted that we cannot realize what it means to people who come from a country where they have lived in constant fear of the secret police, of being robbed of their possessions by the government, of being denied the right to live and travel where and how they please. Perhaps we need some new blood in America, to help bring back the old ideals of liberty as the most precious thing in the world, the one thing worth dying for.

LITTLE TOWN IN WINTER

Spread with deep white ermine,
The narrow, winding streets seem
Beneath the moon's gleam
Like paths besilvered. Cottage roofs
Glisten with the same soft sheen
That lamplight glow
Behind bright curtained windows
Lends to little squares of snow
Still spotlessly clean,
All the air is fragrant
With the scent of wood-smoke,
And the glimpse of a firelog
aflake
Within a homey room tends to invoke
A benediction on a passerby.

Oh, a winter-white night
Lifts a little town far and high
Above the commonplace and dull,
Bestowing upon it the grandeur
Of the beautiful,
As if to match that corner of Paradise
Where God most frequently retires,
So alluring are its simple joys,
So wholesome its inhabitants' desires.

Now You Understand It

A colored porter in a hotel was asked why rich men usually gave him small tips, while poor men were liberal.

"Well, suh, boss, I don't know, 'cept the rich man don't want nobody t' know he's rich, and the po' man don' want nobody t' know he's po'."

"Your vegetables cost more than they used to."

"Yes," replied the farmer, "when a farmer is supposed to know the botanical name of what he's raisin', the zoological name of the insect that eats it, and the chemical name of what will kill it, somebody's got to pay."

SHIPPING DEPT.

Yes, sir, folks, step right up this way and meet Mr. "Howl" Lewis, and if you don't believe this is the correct spelling just ask Robah Durham.

Marthie Gentry says Ralph Gentry has gone "dog-crazy," but we wonder if a certain fellow now employed in the napping department and formerly of this department has not gone "rabbit-crazy." He has plenty of money or else he just doesn't mind spending it for rabbits. He paid $11.65 for one the other day.

If you hear any peculiar noises these days it's just probably muscles stretching or bones cracking for all of the members of this department are taking advantage of our nice new recreational building, and pretty soon we think everyone from the youngest to the oldest ones will know how to hula-hula, hoochie-koochie, black-bottom, little-apple, rumba, carica, charleston, yam or what have you.

Hear ye, hear ye, we are just about to bestow on Mr. C. H. Leary, "The Champion Seafood Eaters Medal." He spent a recent week-end in Norfolk and Portsmouth, Va., and he said that at that time his record was nine oysters, four fish, four cups of coffee and we don't know what else, but anyone who at any time desires to challenge him to defend his title we think he will be glad to do so, that is provided you feel able to furnish the eats.

Ruth Allred spent Thanksgiving in Boone, N. C., with her sister who is attending Appalchian State Teachers College.

The other day a colored gentleman called at this office and announced that he wanted to see Mr. Leary. Mr. Leary being busy at that time, the colored gentleman was asked if he wished to see him about employment. Oh, no, ma'am, no, ma'am, I'se don't want nothin' like that. I'se just want a job.

Charlie Sasher has one of the nicest new shiners you've seen lately. We don't know how he got it but Charlie says he was hammering on an iron pipe and the pipe got tired of taking it all the time, and jumped up and started hammering on him.

NIGHT NAPPING

Glenn Anderson has moved to the country where the brethren can take care of him.

Someone else is also wondering why Glenn moves so much. Well, your guess is as good as mine, but I do think he must be going nomadic.

Robert Green went off Thanksgiving and ate too much. Shame on you, Robert. You shouldn't be so piggish.

Somebody said that Robert went to get a haircut and sat in the foot of the chair and then when the barber asked if he wanted a massage, he replied, "Do crackers come served with it?" To climax it all, he put a nickel in a peanut machine and said, "Please play 'Home Sweet Home'." It all sounds screwy to me.

Mr. and Mrs. Zeb Cash had as their dinner guests recently Miss DeWitt Gentry and Robert Reynolds.

Christmas secrets: Two certain people are going to get fooled for Christmas. If you don't believe me, just ask Polly Gentry and Henry Prince sometime after Christmas.

Yates, the sweetheart of the cutting department, has been out sick for the last few days. Too much courting, I'm afraid.

Mr. Gary Floyd had as his guests Thanksgiving, Mr. and Mrs. Reba Grainger and Gordon Floyd, of Mullins, S. C. While here they visited the Reynolds Tobacco company.

Luther Hanks was the week-end guest of home folks at Thurmond, N. C. Charlie Hanks, who was bitten by a snake, is slowly improving.

"Freck," what is this we hear about your being so late for the dance? We are curious to know what happened.

Mr. Page has a new Ford. He says that only girls are eligible to ride in it.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Gentry visited recently at the home of Mr. R. G. Gentry.

The night girls are all for Mr. Erl now. Just ask Page. Page says he passes out candy sometimes too.

Thanksgiving dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Shoaf were Mrs. Susie Shoaf, Mrs. Ada Hege, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Shoaf and Mr. and Mrs. Amos Hege.

Mr. and Mrs. Zeb Cash spent some time in Asheville visiting, on that rainy week-end. Remember?

M. Brown has a boil on his hand and we think he is trying to keep it as it doesn't improve very much. You should see how good he is to that hand.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Crafford, an 11-pound girl, Nov. 21st.

Floyd Shoaf just can't find any more spots in any of the blankets.

Jesse Lawson is an expert on making greasy selvages.

Glenn Anderson has more ironing to do than anyone else. We think he sits on the blankets.

Jack Boose dearly loves to whistle "A Tisket, A Tasket." Really, he does it too well.

Third Shift

Ott Holder does love to go opossum hunting.

Ikey Disher has started something. He had a big rabbit stew at his home recently.

Our foreman, Mr. Carroll, spent the week-end in the country and attended church at Sandy Springs.

Latest news on Oscar: He just sold a car load of turkeys. There were 386 of them and he sold them for twenty-five cents a pound, thus bringing him fourteen hundred and seventy-five dollars. Joe, if you want to borrow any money, here is a good prospect.

The impossible has happened, Evander Fishel is never late to work any more.

The cutting department certainly appreciates the new recreation building. The whole night force express their sincere appreciation for it.

FINISHING

May we take this opportunity to thank those responsible for our new recreation building. We are proud of it and appreciate it very much. So let's show our appreciation by caring for it as we do our homes. After all it is ours and we want to keep it as nice as it is now. Not only on the material side can we show our appreciation but other ways as well. Will you take this pledge with me? "I will, to the best of my ability, try to preserve our recreation building, not only furniture and equipment, but I will conduct myself as a lady or gentleman when on its premises."

The opening of the club house was a huge success. Even the steady downpour of rain did not prevent this. Everyone had a grand time.

Talking about rain, was everyone as surprised as I on Thanksgiving afternoon, when the rain turned to snow? I am sure everyone had a good time eating turkey, chicken, etc., with all the fixings.

Mr. and Mrs. Odell Mayberry and Mr. Kingy Darnell were the holiday guests of Mrs. Lola Hol-

Among others attending the game from this department were Katherine Whitener, Ann Lineback, Mr. and Mrs. Lefty McIlwee, Bill Dixon and Nig. Plaster. Needless to say, the game was a thriller and the "blankets of snow" added to its perfection.

Our dear "Skipper" has killed himself a deer. We've only his word for it, but I guess that's O. K. Congratulations, Skipper.

The girls basketball team is off to a good start again this year. They have played three games so far and all have been decidedly in their favor. But wait until the big attraction comes this week-end, when the Chatham Girls and Boys meet the respective teams of Drayton, S. C. Come on, team, we must add these games.

Mrs. Martha Gentry has returned to work following an illness of two weeks.

It seems like Christmas today,

And do I hear the first jingle of wedding bells along with those Christmas bells? How about it, Margaret?

Why was Bidy so happy last week-end?

Have you joined the Lucy Hanes Chatham Club during their recent contest? If you haven't you should. It looks like Duke will be the winner again this time.

AMONG OUR SICK

Mr. W. A. Neaves was indisposed several days this week due to cold.

Among the employees who are patients at the Hugh Chatham Memorial hospital are the following: Roy Chipman, Shop; Mrs. Ila Carter, Burling; Loyd Dowell, Spinning; and Mack Hemric, Spinning.

DAY BY DAY

I heard a voice at evening softly say,

Bear not thy yesterday into tomorrow,

Nor load this week with last week's load of sorrow.

Lift all thy burdens as they come, nor try

To weigh the present with the by and by.

One step and then another, take thy way;

Live day by day.

Though autumn leaves are withering around thy way,

Walk in the sunshine. It is all for thee.

Push straight ahead, as long as thou canst see;

Dread not the winter whither thou mayest go,

But when it comes, be thankful for the snow.

Onward and upward. Look and smile and pray;

Live day by day.

Patient: "Does a fish diet strengthen the brain?"

Doctor (returning from vacation): "Perhaps not; but going fishing seems to strengthen the imagination."
