94 And Going Strong

In a cavernous building busy with workers and bright from overhead fluorescent lamps, Norris Hatcher, 94, is at work using an air powered tool to assemble parts needed for manufacturing furniture. He's steady and sure as he handles the wood, because he's been doing this for a while. He's worked in the furniture business for 73 years. When asked when he plans on retiring, his reply is, "When I get old enough."

Hatcher has been at Bassette Furniture Industries, Inc., since 1969. That was the same year he was "retired" for eight months after working 43 years at the Mount Airy Furniture Company.

The decision to take the job offer from Bassett wasn't a difficult one: Hatcher is a man who lives by the code of "staying busy" to keep from becoming "old." He works a forty-hour work week and "keeps up with the best of them," said Ron Spivey, Human Resources Manager for Bassett.

"Work has become his hobby," Spivey added. "He gets along well with people and he's a good sport."

Spivey suggested that the company nominate Hatcher for the "Outstanding Older Worker Award," a contest sponsored by the non-profit organization, Green Thumb Inc., The North Carolina Employment and Training Association, The United States Department of Labor, the Administration on Aging, the Internal Revenue Service, the Social Security Administration, and the American Legion. Hatcher won for North Carolina. He'll be honored along with the other 49 contestants October 6 at a gala celebration that's rumored to be possibly attended by President Clinton or Vice President Al Gore. Others slated to be there are members of Congress and presidential staffers and cabinet members, among others.

Hatcher will probably go to the event with family. He's a widower with three surviving children: Norris Hatcher, Jr., Rebecca Kurtz and Harriet Shore. He has ten grandchildren and ten great grandchildren. Asked if his family is proud of his achievement, the modest Hatcher replied, "Yes, I suppose."

He attributes his many years of productivity to "clean living and the Man Upstairs." His favorite thing to eat is seafood. He rises at 4:00 a.m. every day and is in bed by 9:30 p.m. He walks a mile a day and stays busy after work being a board member for Kiwanis, a lifetime member of the Renfro Masonic Lodge 691 and travels and gardens whenever he gets the chance.

"You can't be a couch potato," he maintained. "You've got to stay busy." He drives a '91 Cadillac and is a regular church goer. He likes what he does at Bassett because "it's different things to work on every day." Passing down a hallway a young co-worker jokes with him amiably. Someone else waves from another room. He speaks of his experience sky-diving last year, and says it with a wink. At an employee outing, a plane passed overhead and several parachuters floated to the ground in a planned display. Once they landed the lights dimmed, then came on again quickly. Norris Hatcher walked out grinning triumphantly, wearing a parachute, giving the appearance that he'd just made the jump. The crowd roared. Hatcher grinned at his one immodest moment. "It was fun."

Worker, 93, can't stand to sit still

He's put in 30 years on post-retirement job

"I have to keep active. I can't be a couch potato."

Norris Hatcher
93-year-old unretired furniture worker

MOUNT AIRY

The way Norris Hatcher sees it, the recipe for a long and happy life is not as complicated as people make it out to be.

Hatcher, 93, believes in saying his prayers, eating plenty of fruits and vegetables, and never sitting around long enough to think too much about himself.

"You've got to live with yourself 24 hours a day," Hatcher said. "You've got to give yourself some time off from that. . . . You have to have something to do."

Time off for Hatcher means punching the clock at Bassett Furniture Industries' plant in Mount Airy, where he works 40 hours a week on an assembly line.

HATCHER IS THE company's oldest employee and one of its hardest workers. And with each punch of the staple gun that he uses to help put cabinets together, his legend grows.

"I'd love to have 50 more like him if I could find them," said Ron Spivey, the human-resources manager at Bassett. "He can pretty much hold his own against anybody. . . . He's one of a kind."

Hatcher, born in Surry County on Jan. 25, 1906, said he never really intended to embark on what has become a 73-year career as a factory worker.

After graduating from Mount Airy High School in 1923, Hatcher spent two years at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, where he studied electrical engineering and business administration.

Though he enjoyed school, Hatcher decided it was more important to start making money. He left Chapel Hill in 1926 for a job at the Mount Airy Furniture Co.

Hatcher said he had hoped to go back to college, but by the time the Depression struck, he was married and had two children.

"Back in those days, you couldn't buy a job," Hatcher said. "There wasn't any point in going back to school."

So he stayed on at Mount Airy Furniture, rising to the position of assistant plant manager before he retired in 1969.

By that point, Hatcher figured it was time for a break. He was 63, and he and his wife, Nina, had raised four children.

But after eight months of puttering around his house, Hatcher was bored — and frustrated with Social Security payments that he said were too small to pay his bills.

In September 1969, he went to work for Bassett. He's not doing it for the money anymore, but he said he has never had thoughts of retiring a second time.

Bassett honored Hatcher's 30 years of service with the company last week during a minor-league baseball game in Martinsville, Va.

With hundreds of company employees on hand, Hatcher threw out the first pitch and spent the evening chatting with co-workers.

Hatcher took Friday off to recover from the festivities, but about 6:30 a.m. yesterday he got into his Cadillac and made the 15-minute drive from his house on Church Street to Bassett's plant on Sheep Farm Road.

By 7 a.m., he was back on the assembly line, itching to outwork colleagues who are just a fraction of his age.

"I have to keep active," Hatcher explained during a brief break. "I can't be a couch potato."

During his years at Bassett, Hatcher's wife of 51 years and one of his children have died, two of his children have retired, and he has watched 10 grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren grow up.

Through all of the changes, Hatcher has worked with a single-mindedness that amazes his colleagues.

Dorothy Presnell, who has worked beside Hatcher for about nine years, praised his dependability, his wit, and the high standards he sets for himself and others.

"He knows what he's doing," Presnell said. "If it's not right, he knows what needs to be done to do it right."

Away from work, Hatcher keeps busy by tending to his house in Mount Airy and a mountain retreat in Fancy Gap, Va.

He is a fixture at Central United Methodist Church in Mount Airy, and he serves on the board of directors of the city's Kiwanis Club.

An avid traveler, Hatcher has visited all 50 states and in recent years went to Australia, South America and Europe.

ANDY JACKSON CRIST FAMILY

Andy Jackson Crist, son of Hugh and Mary Hawthorne Crist, married Oga Garnet Sisson Crist, daughter of Amos and Armetta Sisson. Into this family nine children were born: Rena May, she married Tommie Woyan, two children, Jerry and Charles (Mike) Woyan: John, he married Betty Devore, four children, Shirley, Virginia, Connie and Frank Crist; Earl, he married Ruth Ann Gibson, two children, Johnny and James Earl Crist; Garnet, she married Max Galloway three children, Julie, Mark and Gay Sharron Galloway: Goldie, she married Lawrence Edward Powell, two children, Darlena Ann and Roger Lee Powell: Ruby, she married Gene Dudding, two children, Rosemarie and Lonnie Dudding: Mary, she married Floyd Ekers, three children, Rosemary, Kathy, and Joyce Ekers. Ernie and Alma died at a young age.

Oga Crist, our mother, died leaving seven small children. The oldest was Rena whom was twelve years old and the youngest was six months. Andy Crist, our father, never remarried. Our oldest sister, Rena, and our father raised the family until we were older and went our separate ways. The first one to leave home was, John. He went into the Navy. Times weren't too bad as our sister took our mother's place. Meals were always ready and the house was warm. The winters were long and cold. We always butchered two large hogs for winter meat and the weather was cold enough that the meat was cured out in a building and left all winter long. We would go to the meat house the night before and cut a big piece of cured ham for breakfast along with biscuits and brown gravy. After you get to thinking about it, times were really not bad back then. There was always something to eat.

We always prepared for winter. My father always taught us about plants and things in the woods that nature provided for man. We would gather herbs. Colts Foot and Dollar Leaf were gathered and dried for winter tea. Always there was pickled corn, pickled beans, and side meat pickled in a large stone jar. We would dry apples on a sheet spread out on the roof. When dry, they wre stored in paper bags. Also, there were large mounds of dirt piled high. in these, were apples, potatoes, turnips and cabbage. We could hardly wait for someone to dig in the old apple hole so we could have some apples and raw turnips.

The Crist Family

When we went to the store, there wasn't much to buy but matches, oil, soap, tobacco, flour, baking powder, soda, salt, etc. We always took eggs in exchange for food. We always liked to go to Earl Doss Grocery. He would always give us a stick of candy. It meant more to us then than a pound of best chocolate today. There were days when the peddling wagon would come through, run by Elza Wray, and our father would get us a candy bar. Back then, you got a candy bar that lasted all day.

When we went to get the cows for milking in the evening, there were always apple and pear trees growing wild way out in the pasture fields. There were butternuts and walnuts. We always

Recollections of Miss Alice Bennett Hatcher

By R.J. BERRIER

The years rest lightly on Miss Alice Bennett Hatcher's shoulders — shoulders that may perhaps be a bit frailer than when she was teaching at Rockford Street School in Mount Airy, but still erect and proud.

If true, it is understandable, for she did retire from teaching 33 years ago — in 1958.

And she did turn 98 July 12.

The sparkle in her eyes is still readily apparent and she laughs easily.

Conversation flows as smoothly as the sparkling Dan River that Miss Alice recalls — and as effortlessly as her recollection of life in the good old days.

Information on the Civil War — fresh from the mouth of her father who fought in that ill-fated War of Southern Independence — comes from an apparent fount of knowledge on the subject.

The Allen family — of the 1912 Hillsville Courthouse shoot-out — is remembered well.

Life as it was on the Patrick County farm on which she grew up is fondly remembered.

This near-centenarian is amazing in many respects.

Her only concession to the years are the more easily readable, large-print publications that she peruses and the walker she uses as an aid to get about. The walker hampers her in no way from guiding guests in her home at Dobson to various points, where she will indicate items of interest ranging from a prized United Daughters of the Confederacy pin that she received recently and wears proudly each Sunday, to a four-poster bed that came with her parents when they moved to Patrick County, Va. about 1845.

She has lived in the comfortable brick home on Norman Lane in Surry's county seat for some 10 years, since she moved from the Hatcher home on Granite Street in Mount Airy. She lived in Mount Airy for a half-century before moving to Dobson.

In her home, she is surrounded by memories of the past — portraits of her parents and other relatives and various pictures appear frequently on the walls of the various rooms and the household furnishings include antiques that came from the family farm in Patrick County.

Miss Alice's family came to the rich farmland of Patrick County from Bedford, Va. at Peaks of Otter.

She was born Wednesday, July 12, 1893, in Patrick County. Grover Cleveland was president and Adlai Stevenson — a forerunner of the Illinois governor by the same name who unsuccessfully sought the presidency against Dwight D. Eisenhower in 1952 and 1956 — was vice president.

Furnishings include an heirloom bed (left), an antique flax wheel at which Susan Wilmoth sits (center) and a painting of Henry Bennett in his Civil War uniform.

"There were 12 of us," she recalls. They were the children of Rush F. Hatcher and Mary Bennett Hatcher. It is from her father that she acquired her Civil War knowledge. He was a member of Co. F, 5th Bn., Virginia Regiment.

Several members of her family fought in the Civil War; some died. Her grandmother was also one of the many Southerners who gave food to the former gray-clad soldiers when they were walking home at the end of hostilities and stopped by the Hatcher farm for food and rest.

"The people of Virginia didn't want slaves," Miss Alice declared. They were brought to Virginia in crowded ships, she said. When they were in the slave auctions, frightened and screaming their terror, Virginians bought them, took them to their homes and provided them with good homes. The trusted retainers were like members of the family.

Blacks were used on the Hatcher's dairy farm, she noted. There were always blacks working on the farm.

"They would go to the white folks' church when they wanted to and sit in the back," Miss Alice said.

No one really thought anything about the sitting arrangements, for the whites, when they wanted to, would also go to the blacks' church, and when they did, the whites would sit on the back rows.

Family members were buried in the graveyard near the home. "Father was the first one buried there," she said. "Then mother and grandmother started burying the colored people there." Dozens of blacks were interred in the family cemetery.

Later, when the Hatchers moved to Mount Airy, the members of her family who were buried in that family graveyard were reinterred at Oakdale Cemetery.

She recalled one of the blacks at the Virginia home, "Uncle Burrell." He left to take a job at Sylvatus, Va., "but then he came back," Miss Alice said.

The farm is the subject of a large mural hanging on the wall of one of the rooms in Miss Alice's house.

She recalls well the barn housing the cattle on the dairy farm. "We had the prettiest barn," she said. The cattle were trained to drink water, each from its own trough.

"You just couldn't get by without horses and cows," she said. There were no cars then, of course.

Her father was an avid horseman. "I'd run down to the road to meet him and he would pull me up on the saddle," she recalled.

"Once, he pulled me up and gave the horse a slap. I screamed (when the horse galloped to the barn)."

Miss Alice graduated from the Woman's College of Richmond in 1913. While she was a student, "that's when they electrocuted the Allens," she said. "The pastor of the First Baptist Church of Richmond went all out to save Claude Allen. He got up at 6 a.m. (the morning of the electrocution) and went to the prison."

Floyd Allen and Claude Allen were electrocuted.

She recalled the wording on the Allens' tombstone, "...judiciously murdered by the State of Virginia over the protests of over 100,000..."

J. Sidna Allen, she recalled, got the money to build his home (the J. Sidna Allen mansion at Fancy Gap, Va.) from the Klondike. She said that he was one of the gold miners who headed for Alaska during the legendary gold rush.

"Tom Byrd (of the famed Virginia Byrd dynasty) had three sons," Miss Alice said. "They were Tom, Dick and Harry." Dick (Richard) was the noted explorer, while Harry Byrd headed Virginia's powerful political machine.

"While Harry was governor of Virginia, he pardoned the Allens and restored their citizenship," she said.

Commenting about the well-known shoot-out in 1912, she said, "When Sidna Allen went to the penitentiary, there were people who said they saw him standing outside the courthouse (when the shooting occurred)."

Miss Alice still feels the Allens were embroiled in Carroll County politics which caused their conviction of a crime they did not commit.

It was in the fall of 1913 that Miss Alice began her teaching career. "I first taught five miles from Stuart at a Presbyterian school. I taught there one year. They had a woman principal, a most irritable person. I didn't go back."

She said she also taught at Stuart, Va., in the Patrick County schools and one year in Duplin County at Warsaw.

In 1929, the Hatchers moved to Mount Airy. "Mother was old," she explained, "and couldn't use the outside toilet. We moved to Mount Airy to get water and power.

"Mother lived until 1932 and I looked after her, day and night, except for one week when I went to Florida.

"I lived in Mount Airy for 50 years," she continued. "We always lived in the same house (the Hatcher house on Granite Street).

She always taught the first grade, "except for one year when I taught the third grade. I didn't like that."

"A room full of little children is something to enjoy," she declared.

She chuckled as she recalled the interest the young boys showed in their navels. "They were always pulling up their shirts and comparing navels."

Years later, after Miss Alice moved to Dobson, one of the painters working on her house sang the familiar "Good Morning" song from school days at Rockford Street School. "I don't know who he was," she said.

She also recalls that the Barlow knife was a favorite with the school boys. "We had a rule, 'No Barlow knives in school.' If we saw a knife we had to take it away. After school, they could take it back, but they couldn't bring it back to school.

"Once, a boy pulled out a Barlow and I told him, 'You know the rules. Close it and give it to me.' He just sat there. He did close it, though, and give it to me."

Years later, the former student had a son who went to Rockford Street School. "The son stuck to me like a leech, but I never taught him."

How long did she teach? Miss Alice says, "I started in September after I was 20 in July." She retired when she was 65.

Miss Alice had a story to tell about the picture of a thoroughbred horse hanging on the wall of her home. It was a beautiful animal.

"A man came by and asked Les (F.L. Hatcher, her brother, who was treasurer of Spencer's Inc. for many years) what he would take for the horse.

"Les said, '$15,000,' and the man just wrote him out a check.

"Les said that would teach him to never put a price on something he didn't really want to sell."

She recalled taking art lessons "from Ruth Minick's mother." For her instruction in china painting, though, it was necessary to go to Burlington.

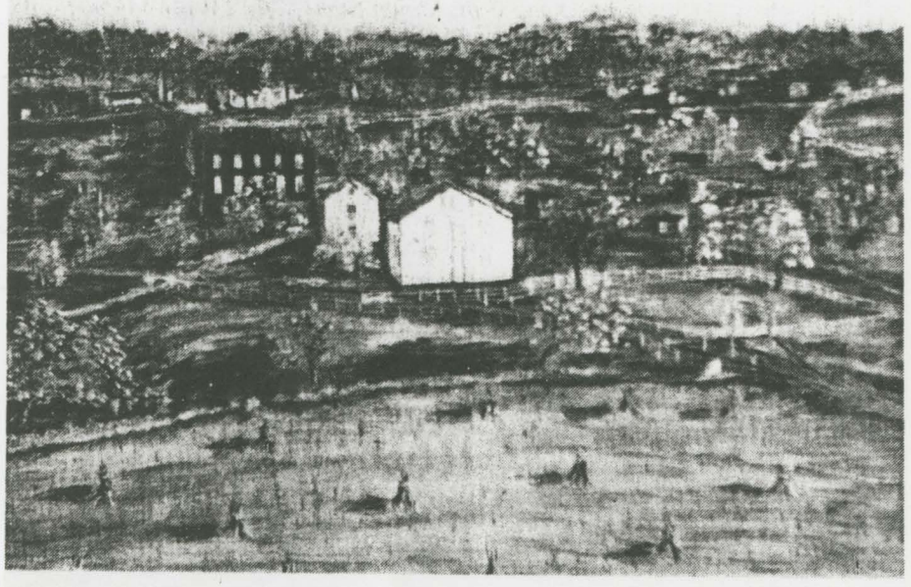

There are several examples of her painting expertise in her house.

She also showed a number of vintage books in her living room. "There is a spelling book we had when I was about 10 years old," Miss Alice said. There was also an 1872 "pronouncing speller," an 1882 publication called Miss Daisy's Hymn Book ; an aged "grammar book," and a 1905 copy of The Virginian, among others.

The Hatchers were Presbyterian "for three generations." However, after moving to Dobson, she began going to Dobson United Methodist Church "because it is convenient."

As the interview for Simple Pleasures was winding down, Miss Alice, eyes twinkling merrily, commented about happiness and her obvious good health, appropriately enough since she is a retired teacher, with a quotation.

"Happiness," she declared, quoting Albert Schweitzer, "is good health and a bad memory." In her case, Miss Alice Hatcher certainly has no problem with a bad memory.

This scene of old Mount Airy is one of the numerous pieces of original art hanging on the walls of Miss Alice Hatcher's home. The painting is of Brower's Mill and the Hamburg settlement as it might have looked in the early 1800s.

five miles from Stuart and also taught in Stuart, the Patrick County schools and in Warsaw, Va.

She and her family moved to Mount Airy in 1929 to better care for her elderly mother. She lived at the Hatcher home on Granite Street for 50 years before moving to Dobson 10 years ago.

In Mount Airy, she taught at Rockford Street School — always the first grade, except for one year when she taught in the third grade, "but I didn't like that," she said.

"A room full of little children is something to enjoy," she once remarked.

She was a member of Asbury Presbyterian Church, although she had attended Dobson United Methodist Church since moving to the county seat.

She was also a member of the United Daughters of the Confederacy.

Miss Hatcher's brother, the late F.L. Hatcher, was the long-time treasurer of Spencer's Inc. and was yet going to his office until shortly before he died in the late 1970s when he was 95. Memorials may be made to the F.L. Hatcher Memorial Scholarship Fund at Surry Community College, Dobson.

DOBSON — Alice Bennett Hatcher, whose recollection of historical happenings in the 20th century came from first-hand knowledge, is dead.

Miss Hatcher, 98, died at her home on Norman Lane from medical complications triggered by her advancing years.

Born July 12, 1893 in Patrick County, she was the daughter of Rush Floyd and Mary Bennett Hatcher. Her father fought in the Civil War.

When she was born Grover Cleveland was president. She knew well the Allen clan — famed for the Hillsville, Va. courthouse shootout — and Virginia's powerful Byrd dynasty.
