Calloway helps veterans get the help they need

MONDEE TILLEY
STAFF REPORTER

As a veteran of the Army, Larry Calloway now enjoys helping other veterans through his work at the North Carolina Employment Security Commission.

Calloway is a Surry County native, who has lived in a few different places, but now resides in the Devotion community. He can trace his family history in the county back to the 1780s.

After graduating from Surry Central High School, Calloway joined the military in 1970 as a medic. He served three years, mostly in California and Europe. One of his highlights of military duty was serving as medical support for the Olympics.

After he returned from the Army, Calloway jokes that he drifted around for a couple of years driving a Volkswagen camper van.

In 1975, he started attending Surry Community College under the G.I. bill. From there, he transferred to Wilkes Community College where he got his associate's degree in arts and in science industrial technology.

After working at several local companies, Calloway went to work for Duke Power. He worked there for 13 years. He started out in Elkin working at the transmission control center, then he moved up to manage their generation.

"When they deregulated the utility industry, some of my associates and I set up the Energy Trade Forum, which is sort of like what the Enron people did," Calloway said, smiling.

Then Calloway moved to Washington, D.C., as a consultant for energy deregulation. After four months there, he moved to Philadelphia, Pa., to work with Philadelphia Electric, which had been recruiting him. During his time with that company, he was an energy trader in Chicago for the Board of Trade.

Calloway recalled his experience on Sept. 11, 2001. He was in Vancouver, British Columbia, that day.

"It took me a week to get home on a train across Canada. It's a beautiful trip if you have a sleeper car, and not sitting in a seat for four days. My military training came in handy, because I had taken some small towels and bars of soap and shampoo from the hotel in Vancouver. On the train, the bathrooms are so small, the sink is no bigger than a hard hat. So I did the old sink bath like we did in the military," Calloway said.

He returned home after the attack to his home outside of Philadelphia near Valley Forge Park near a nuclear power plant. He told his wife that with the eminent threat of a terrorist attack on the plant, that if the power company he worked for downsized again, he wanted to move back home.

"I loved what I did, but I wanted to come home. I drew a salary from the company for a couple of years on the condition that I wouldn't work for a competitor," Calloway said.

After spending those two years building his home in Devotion, he decided that he needed to go back to work. That's when he walked into the North Carolina Employment Security Commission looking for a job. He was referred to a veteran's representative who told him that he would be retiring soon and to be on the lookout for his job.

"Eventually he did retire, and I came in and applied with the help of Marsha Robinson, (an employee of the ESC) who actually helped me get my application correct several times, because I kept messing it up," he said, laughing.

He got the job in December of 2004. He spends 50 percent of his time working as an employment specialist consultant and the other half of his time is spent helping veterans. His official title is Local Veteran Employment representative or LVER. He works in both Surry and Yadkin counties.

"I deal with the vets that are my age and the ones that are just now coming out of the military. First of all, veterans coming out of the military at this time — they are given a process that helps them understand all of the benefits. But if they are like me when I got out in 1973, I didn't listen to anything. I was just glad to be getting out and to come home."

Calloway has been married Mary Parker Calloway for the last 31 years. He has three sons: Jamie, 32, who is married to Denise, lives in Stanton, Pa., and has one son, Noah, who is 2-years-old. His middle son, Dereck, 27, lives in his garage apartment and coaches football at White Plains. His youngest son, Elijah, is 9-years-old and is active in sports at Cedar Ridge Elementary School.

Calloway is an avid cook and loves to cook Sunday suppers for his family.

He is equally passionate about his work with veterans. Calloway says when a veteran comes to see him, he immediately tries to develop a plan. He said veterans are entitled to unemployment benefits. Even if they were in the National Guard or the Reserves, he said, they are entitled to benefits. He said their compensation is based on their pay from the rank they were when they got out of the military.

"The first thing I do when they walk in the door and they identify themselves as veterans — I thank them for serving our country. I appreciate them. I remember in 1970 and '71 when I came home on leave they told us not to wear our uniforms because the way things were back then. So today, the first thing I want to do is tell every veteran that served in the United States military that he and she has all the thanks from the bottom of my heart. Because it is a voluntary military — and I volunteered," Calloway said.

Calloway tells all of the veterans to go see Col. Don Belle, who is in charge of Veteran's Services in Surry County.

"The veterans coming back to this county should be made aware that there are certain benefits out there. Just because you get a disability rating from the military, you can get a V.A. disability. Also, every veteran getting out of the military is entitled to five years of free medical benefits. This is one thing that I encourage them to do is to go see Col. Belle and get registered for medical so they can go down to the VA clinic. They are also entitled to G.I. bill benefits, which will go towards their education," Calloway said.

He explained that many times, veterans think they can't go to college because they don't have any insurance, so they feel like they have to get a job to get benefits.

Right now, Calloway said he sees an equal amount of men and woman veterans coming in for benefits.

"One thing that I see a lot of is people who are in their 20s who have already done three tours of combat, which is very strenuous on them and their families. So there is a lot of adjustment to do. So that's one reason why I want to sign up for unemployment, do career scope with me and see what they want to do. We also refer veterans to the Workforce Investment Act, or WIA, because veterans get preference with that program."

He also stressed that any veteran who comes into the N.C. ESC commission office should identify themselves as a veteran. He said, by law, they get priority treatment.

He said veterans also get priority treatment when it comes to job placement. He said federal contractors within this area are required to list their jobs with the ESC to give veterans preference.

"I firmly believe in hiring a vet first. Veterans make great employees. They are disciplined. They have been in strenuous situations," Calloway said. "I want to make sure that employers understand that young vets and the older vets have paid the price by serving our country. They should be given the opportunity to serve us as United States citizens in jobs that we have out there."

Dorothy Calloway oversees an assignment in her seventh grade math class.

Teacher touches many lives in 52 years

By Phil Goble Jr.
phil@surrymessenger.com

PILOT MOUNTAIN — More than half a century ago, Dorothy Calloway stepped into a classroom to teach.

This year, she will say good-bye.

"This is it," she said Wednesday in her Pilot Mountain Middle School classroom. "I've made up my mind. I have peace of mind about it."

It's been a 52-year journey, one that has woven through the lives of students, their children and in a few cases their children's children.

And it all began with a sickness.

Dorothy Calloway was born and raised in Boisevain, Va., an unincorporated community in Tazewell County.

After graduating high school, Calloway aspired to be a nurse. She was accepted at the University of Virginia in Charlottesville and started down that path.

Then she got sick.

"It was called 'homesick,'" she said with a smile. So she called her parents, who came and took her home.

But her daddy was not willing to let her just slide by each day.

"My daddy said, 'You're going to do something,'" she said. Dorothy joined a sister at Radford who was studying teaching.

She had not graduated when she started teaching, but spent every summer completing her degree while working in the schools.

That year was 1946.

"It (teaching) doesn't look the same," she said. "We were first through seventh, no kindergarten. We had blackboards. We had a room full of students. The students have changed and that all goes back to home training. It's a different ball game."

Teacher has been a classroom for 52 years

It truly was a different world.

On Valentine's Day that year, the first general-purpose electronic computer was displayed at the University of Pennsylvania.

That year, the United Nations held its first meeting in London; the CIA's predecessor — the Central Intelligence Group — was founded; MENSA, the society for top intellectuals, began; bikinis were first introduced in Paris; and the New York Knicks beat the Toronto Huskies, 68-66, in the first Basketball Association of America game.

Even better, Frank Capra's "It's a Wonderful Life" was released in New York City.

Calloway hasn't needed a George Bailey experience to realize her life has been wonderful. She sees it in the faces of the students who sit in her class.

"I love it," she said of teaching. "The children. I love each one of them."

Calloway taught her first few years in Bois-sevain. Then, after her father passed away, her mother moved to Rural Hall. Dorothy followed her at the end of the school year and got a job at Sage Garden in Forsyth County.

Two years later, she came to Surry County and has been here ever since.

Dorothy has taught everything from second to eighth grade. She has instructed students in language arts and math, although math has become her favorite because she's taught it the longest.

"A lot of principals would use Mrs. Calloway because she could teach anything," Robin Hules, whose room is beside Calloway's, said.

She settled into math in 1993 when the system went to the middle school set-up.

"She loves it," Pilot Mountain Middle Principal Dennis Lawson said. He took sixth grade math from Dorothy. Now, he's her boss. "She's changed over time, but she's still got some old school. She's certified in just about everything. A lot of these students' parents had her as a teacher. It's almost like she's a grandmother."

But she's a grandmother with expectations.

She constantly walks the aisles of class, red pen in hand ready to put a big check or X — depending on what answer she sees.

"I do not work (problems) for them," she said. "You get what you expect from them. You heard me say, 'work these out' ... I want to see the work."

She just refuses to let a student fail, Lawson said.

"The wisdom is there," he said. "They respect that. She gets a lot of respect. I think they respect her for what she stands for."

She admires technology, but is not a big fan of

it. She likes the basics, giving students the skills necessary to do math with or without electricity.

"We have all these new things," she said. "I'm from the old school. I think calculators have ruined out nation."

But she uses them ... and she learns from them. She has no problems with students using technology, but believes they should be taught the basics so they can handle situations that might pop up.

It's not so much a disdain for technology as a yearning to see the look on a child's face when they discover how to complete a complex equation.

"I'm from the old school," she said with a shrug.

That school is not always bad.

Her students love her. Even her adult students — fellow teachers who have relied on her wisdom and experience.

"I think Mrs. Calloway represents that higher standard for teachers," Hules said. "Not just in her teaching style, but as a human being. I think just the essence of teaching is more than what goes on in the classroom. I see her as more a friend than a colleague."

Calloway is normally at school by 7:15 a.m. — before most of the teachers and all but one or two of the administration.

She stays until 4 or 4:30 p.m. each afternoon and still takes work home.

"It's been good to see her put her expertise and experience into other teachers," Lawson said. "She never misses school. Her attendance is amazing."

Calloway loves the new Professional Learning Community concept. It has helped her and her fellow teachers.

Other teachers enjoy getting the insight and keen eye that come from spending five decades in the classroom.

"It's almost like she's a staple around here," Lawson said. "She's an anchor on this staff."

At the end of the year, the anchor will be weighed. The USS Dorothy will be sailing into the sunset.

The decision was not easy.

"If I had any question, I'd stay," she said. She's answered that question, though. Call it her last test.

"I'll miss all the kids," she said. "I'll miss the faculty. We have a good staff here. I work with a great team."

But time has changed her. She no longer feels the pull to go "up this old road" day after day.

She has been featured in "Our State" magazine and been given the Order of the Long Leaf Pine, the highest civilian honor in the state. That honor was still 19 years from being created when Dorothy started teaching.

In 2007, she was saluted, along with six other teachers, for 50 years of teaching. Lawson drove to Raleigh from the beach to see her recognized by the state legislature. She is the only one of that group still teaching.

"When she decides to retire ...," Lawson said, trailing off. "I've been here five years. This will be a sad time."

"We'll probably miss her more than she'll miss us," Hules said.

Dorothy plans to add to her volunteer work at Horizons Residential Care Center in Rural Hall. She helps fix snacks and work with disabled children.

She'll miss the students — many of whom come back to visit years after sitting in her class — and the school and the friends she's made along the way.

It has been her life since Harry S. Truman held the office that Barack Obama just won.

"A whole lot," she said. "I'll miss it a whole lot." She will be missed a whole lot as well.

"The wisdom is there. They respect that. She gets a lot of respect.

Surry County's sole DSC recipient

By RUBY BLACKBURN

I had promised Ruth Minick shortly before her demise that I would provide information concerning my uncle, Howard Elbert Callaway, who fought in the Battle of the Bulge and gave his life just as our troops were successfully emerging from this near-disaster. Howard was posthumously awarded the Distinguished Service Cross, the only person from Surry County to receive this award that is second only to the Congressional Medal of Honor.

I have a spring bulb garden containing five different varieties of bulbs sent to my grandmother by a family in Holland who had adopted Howard's grave. Ruth had not heard of this custom and was intrigued by this story, so I assured her I would provide information for a column.

The people of Holland had indicated that they wished to adopt and decorate the graves of American soldiers. I did not realize how unusual it is to find out just who had adopted a specific grave until I learned from Ethel Smith, Howard's sister, that the husband of Cleo Vaughn Winkler, now a resident of Ridgecrest, was able to make this connection. From his position in the military, the late Capt. Wallace Winkler knew of this adoption process and provided information that the family of Charles Vanderhoff in Holland adopted the grave of Howard Callaway.

The Vanderhoffs sent pictures of the grave that they had adorned each month with flowers and told how, when Howard's body was returned to the United States for burial, the bulbs from his grave were sent to my grandparents. The Vanderhoffs were grateful to our country for saving them from Hitler's invading armies. Adopting the graves of our men was their way of showing their gratitude.

My grandmother planted the bulbs and, as they multiplied, she shared them with Howard's brothers and sisters. As they continue to multiply, they are being passed down to children and grandchildren. I have cultivated my bulbs to the extent that I now have hundreds of daffodils I am sharing with my children, grandchildren, nephews and nieces.

Howard was born in Carroll County, Va., the son of Thomas Daniel Callaway and the former Lama Matilda Faulkner. He was a graduate of Beulah High School and interested in agriculture, particularly in bees. He loved to hunt and was an excellent marksman, a talent that was a great help to him in the military. His weapon was the bazooka; it was no doubt assigned to him because of his size.

When he finished high school he was awarded a scholarship to N.C. State, but when he arrived on campus he learned that the additional costs were beyond his means and returned home. He spent several years working with bees and honey near Washington, N.C. Later he came to Mount Airy and made his home with his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. James Rufus Blackburn and their family, and helped in the operation of the Fulton Farm north of Mount Airy. He was well-known in Mount Airy, having worked part-time at the Shell Service Station on Main Street.

Howard was adored by the Blackburn children because of his wonderful gift for sharing his experiences. In his late 20s, Howard married Mozelle Lawrence from Aberdeen and they lived in Mount Airy until World War II erupted.

Early in the war, before our country became involved, he and Mozelle moved to Newport News where he worked in the shipyards. Later he was surprised that he was drafted into service, since he was in his early 30s, but he went willingly to serve his country. I remember going with Mozelle to the train station in Winston-Salem where we told him goodbye, not dreaming it would be the last time we would see him on this earth.

the Distinguished Service Cross. He was killed in action on Nov. 24, 1944, near Aachen.)

He was 33 years old and I always relate this to the fact that we are told Christ was this age when he was crucified. I think of Howard giving his life for his country and those he loved. He had no children and we want to do everything we can to preserve his memory. Howard's grave is located at Ivy Green Baptist Church on Maple Grove Church Road, the church he attended, and is marked by a memorial stone in the shape of a cross and bearing the inscription from his medal. The bulbs planted at his grave more than 50 years ago still bloom as do azaleas planted at the same time. No more beautiful resting place could have been found than this cemetery, located near the foot of Fisher's Peak where he grew up. We look forward to seeing him in Heaven where we fully expect to see that familiar twinkle in his eyes as he tells us of his experiences.

Mrs. Fred Lambert Relates Callaway-Blackburn History

The family of Mr. and Mrs. J. Rufus Blackburn often gathers at their home on Mount View Drive and they frequently discuss happenings of the past. Mrs. Fred Lambert, one of their daughters, has mentioned many interesting incidents that our readers will appreciate. She shares some of them with us.

Calvin & Martha Blackburn

My great grandfather, Calvin Blackburn, was an elder in the Primitive Baptist Church. As a young man he and his bride, the former Martha Harper, came from Winston-Salem to a very sparsely settled area on the Piper's Gap Road, in the edge of Virginia near Flower Gap. There they built a home and lived there all their lives. Martha came from an affluent family with all the comforts available at that time; she was well-educated and refined.

As descendants of this pair of "pioneers" it is interesting to discuss them at our family gatherings and we wonder if Martha ever regretted following this young minister into what was practically a wilderness at that time, the early 1800's. Or was she gratified because in this environment she and Calvin produced children who were most ingenious. They could figure out a way to do anything that needed to be done. This ability to work with their hands plus the spiritual heritage and culture they absorbed from their mother combined to make the kind of people who helped to make this area what it is today.

One of his sons, Lee Blackburn, was the village blacksmith shop. He had a well-equipped shop in Lamsburg and served the people for miles around when they needed their horses shod or needed tools made or repaired. Lee Blackburn taught his seven sons how to work with their hands and be self-sufficient. Their names were Clayton, Lum, Walter, Grover, Sanford, Jerry and Rufus. Having been reared by a minister father, Lee Blackburn always welcomed the preachers who came to Chestnut Grove, inviting them to his home to spend the weekend when they had their "Associations" and "Foot Washings", that great service of humility when the members washed each other's feet.

In the summer Lee and his wife, Nealy, would load the "provision box" in the covered

Dan & Laura Callaway

My grandmother, Mrs. Thomas Daniel Callaway, formerly Laura Faulkner, always loved beautiful things.

My grandfather, on the other hand, was much more concerned with the practical things of life. He was a great hunter and delighted in his ability to bring in all sorts of game as well as wild honey which he obtained from cutting down a "bee tree" which he would mark when out on a hunting expedition. He was a descendent of that hardy stock of pioneers described in "Fisher River Scenes" and it was difficult for him to see the value in beautiful things which served no practical purpose.

It was only because of his great love for Laura that he occasionally surprised himself at the lengths he would go to bring some beauty into her life for her enjoyment. When she and my grandfather "set up housekeeping" in a tiny cabin at the foot of the Blue Ridge Mountains, it was the custom to paper the walls of the cabins with newspaper, this being a very effective insulation against the cold and bitter winds which swooped down through the valleys.

As winter approached Dan and Laura made their plans to paper the cabin. One day Dan went to the store and observed that the storekeeper had a roll of wrapping paper unlike the brown paper he had been using to wrap the merchandise he sold. This was a glossy pink paper and Dan wondered what Laura would think of having this paper on the walls, rather than newspaper. He purchased the roll of paper and carried it home and of course Laura was so excited she could hardly wait to get the cabin papered. Laura and Dan lived and loved together for seventy years, moving from the cabin to a roomier place where the walls were painted, but her eyes still sparkled when she told about her shiny pink wall paper.

She loved flowers and had many potted plants. Grandfather made her a cellar where she could keep the flowers in winter. Glass windows were placed over the top of the cellar and heavy wooden doors covered the windows for protection during the cold weather. On sunny days the wooden doors were laid back so the sun could shine through the windows.

One of my mother's early memories is going with her mother to the flower cellar in winter. Infant mortality was very high in those days and it was a great comfort to the mother of one of these little ones if a fresh flower could be placed in the small hand, forever stilled. They never failed to find something in bloom—a geranium, a begonia, or maybe even a fuschia, but my mother said when they lifted the glass windows of the cellar there was an indescribable fragrance, the mingled smell of all the various flowers in Laura's Flower Cellar.

Rufus & Hettie Blackburn

It was 1917 and Rufus Blackburn received his call to serve in the United States Army. He was working in Mount Airy and living at the home of his sister, Mrs. S. C. Stewart, who operated a rooming house called Stewart House, located at the corner of Franklin and Willow Streets. His sweetheart, Hettie Callaway, promised to wait for him. He received his training at Camp Lee, Virginia, and when he came home on furlough he brought her a gold wrist watch and a lavalier. He was soon sent to France where he stayed until the war ended. Upon his return he and Hettie were married at her home near Lamsburg, Virginia.

One of Hettie's former suitors volunteered to go to Hillsville to get the marriage license on the day of the wedding which was to be in late afternoon. A wedding supper had been prepared by the bride's mother, Mrs. Thomas Daniel Callaway, to be served immediately after the wedding. When the friend had not returned with the license, the friends and relatives who had gathered for the wedding were invited to go ahead and eat supper. At the end of the meal a wedding cake made of alternating layers of pink and white and iced with pink frosting and covered with coconut was served to the guests. Finally the friend, who was not anxious to see Hettie get married, returned with the license and the ceremony was performed at 9:00 o'clock in the evening. The groom's uncle, Mr. Fayette Hawks, Justice of the Peace for Carroll County, performed the ceremony, assisted by the bride's pastor, the Reverend Merman Phillips. The bride wore a wedding gown made of white lace over baby blue voile.

The triple-tiered skirt was gathered to a tiny waist band. The bodice was trimmed with narrow blue satin ribbon and had long fitted sleeves. The bride wore white slippers and a cameo necklace which the groom brought to her from France.

The couple spent their honeymoon at the Stewart House and afterward they made their home near Lamsburg in a spot where they had a perfect view of the Sugar Loaf Mountain. There their first child was born; the only one of their six children born in Virginia.

Landscaper Chip Callaway Featured In State Magazine

From Staff Reports

Landscape Architect Chip Callaway is back in the news with a three-page spread in a recent edition of Carolina Gardener.

Copies of the magazine were presented to the 250 garden club members attending the South Atlantic Region convention at New Bern.

Chip's name on the front cover promoted the article, "Chip Callaway's Way," by Maria Johnson.

The author said, "Some people can't wait to escape their work at the end of the day. Chip Callaway can't wait to get back into his. As one of the country's foremost garden designers, he takes a busman's holiday in his own garden in Greensboro every chance he gets.

"In his own backyard and beyond, Callaway has created spectacular, billowing gardens that tiptoe the delicious line between discipline and abandon.

"His lengthy resume lists private residences from Annapolis, Md., to Palm Beach, Fla., plus many historic gardens, including those at the Robert E. Lee Mansion in Stratford, Va., and the Alexander Graham Bell House in Washington, D.C."

The article includes the Mount Airy native's landscaping background and a list of his top ten favorite under-used plants.

His mother, Blanche Callaway, was in Greensboro for a recent visit and enjoyed a tour of Chip's private gardens.

Slaves' descendants remember how life was at Somerset Place

York, Maryland and the same Eastern North Carolina communities that surrounded the plantation all those years ago.

Many said they had heard a call to come home.

"Did you hear it?" Gov. James G. Martin asked the crowd. "Have you heard it yet? That voice saying, 'Come home.'"

"Here you are, and yet you wonder, is this home? Did they think of this place as home?"

Dorothy Spruill Redford, 42, of Portsmouth, Va. — a descendant who organized the event — said she was certain her ancestors did see Somerset that way.

A decade ago, she started tracing her roots, an adventure that pulled her back to Somerset.

Built by Josiah Collins Sr., the plantation became home to 80 African and 100 American slaves 200 summers ago. Collins brought them to the sprawling farm to dig a drainage ditch to link his croplands to the nearby Alligator River. Many of them never left.

In the years that followed, his family members handed down the estate, enlarged the house and eventually became the owners of about 300 slaves. The house was the scene of swank parties that drew the East Coast's social elite.

It was among the family's plantation records that Mrs. Redford found the roots she was searching for. And that success inspired her to track the history of each slave with bloodlines that flow from Somerset Place.

Saturday, family after family drove down the cypress tree-lined road that leads to the grounds, wandered on muddied fields their ancestors had worked and stepped into the past. Many said they were looking for the key that would help help them discover more about their identities.

Music, African drumming and a re-enactment of a slave wedding were presented on the lawns beside the grand house, a three-story mansion of cream-colored siding and green shutters.

Author Alex Haley — whose book "Roots" was credited by many of the descendants for making them aware of their heritages — stopped in for a short surprise visit and a chance to mingle.

Descendants toured the structure's 14 rooms and paraded past the remnants of the plantation's slave hospital.

Only a few small, plainly lettered signs marked the spots on which slaves' houses stood. That seemed to matter little to people like Willis Phelps Jr., of Norfolk.

Phelps had gathered family members from as far away as Los Angeles. His family stood in front of the few bricks and rocks that mark where the hospital once was, posing for pictures.

"My great-great-grandmother, Annie Norman, was born here — and sold here," said Phelps, 56. "She was 112 when she died. I was about 8 then.

"She died right here in Washington County. She lived here all her life. That's the strangest part. I didn't know the place was this close."

His daughter, Carolyn Phelps Benton, said she hoped the children in attendance were absorbing the significance of the day.

"These kids didn't know anything about slavery," said Ms. Benton, as she motioned toward her nephews and nieces. "I don't think some of them even know what a slave was. There's a lot to learn."

It was that chance to learn that brought Edward T. Dickson, 53, and his wife, Ethel, down from Washington.

He said he had planned to start tracing his roots several years ago. And when he read a news account about Mrs. Redford and the homecoming, he called her.

"I never dreamed so many people could be connected," he said. "I kind of think it's going to stir me to dig deeper, to learn how my family went from here up the coast."

While some people bumped into people they had known for years, others discovered new distant cousins. Some passed the day under towering, aging trees, simply talking.

They described a special feeling that most said they didn't expect to be able to recapture.

CALLOWAY

WILMINGTON — Betty Hiatt Calloway, beloved wife and soul mate of William R. Calloway, died peacefully on March 15, 2004, surrounded by her loving family at Lower Cape Fear Hospice and Life Care Center in Wilmington. Her husband, Bill, and an adoring son, William Scott Calloway; his wife, Dianne; and three grandsons, William Joseph "B.J.," Matthew and Michael, survive her. She also leaves behind her brothers, Gary DeWayne Hiatt and Billy Gray Hiatt, and Gary's wife, Dianne. She is preceded in death by a brother, Lee Roy Hiatt. Betty was born Oct. 18, 1937, in Ararat, Va., to Granville Cecil Hiatt and Mildred Vera Sutphin Hiatt. She attended University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, where she earned a degree in the field of medical technology. She taught at Wake Technical Community College in Raleigh for 20 years. Her work life included being a cheerful, creative mother and homemaker for her family, as well as serving her community as a volunteer in various helping agencies. She was a Master Gardener, an active member of Unity Christ Church and a proud leader of a women's investment club. Her true success in life lies in the fact that, as Bill says, "She always had a vision for her life." She lived according to her personal values and standards, never wavering from them, and she shaped her world with that gracious, though unshakable, vision. She found joy in painting, art, music and flowers. She was a talented seamstress and adored thrift stores. Betty brought her joys and standards to the wonderful relationship she had with her husband Bill for 50 years. With unswerving fidelity, she supported her soul mate's own individual vision in their life together. Deeply rooted in her faith, she blossomed with the flowers of fun and delight. Bill says, "They danced the first time they met and danced throughout their life!" They truly found pleasure in all that they did together. There will be a celebration service to reflect Betty's life on March 27, 2004, at 4 p.m. at Unity Christ Church, 717 Orchard Ave., Wilmington, with a reception to follow. In lieu of flowers, the family has requested that memorials be made to Lower Cape Fear Hospice and Life Care Center of Wilmington, Unity Christ Church and American Cancer Society (Wilmington office).

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Recent months have brought a gratifying response from many individuals interested in the Callaways. Launching of The Callaway Journal is a major step forward. The Journal is a valuable means of communicating information on our family origin and history.

The strength of our nation lies in the qualities of character possessed by our forefathers and exemplified by us through our associated families. We are convinced of the benefits of family unity, family solidarity, and family heritage.

Considerable research has been done on the Callaways but there is still uncertainty regarding the exact origin of the earliest recorded Callaways in America. Many records have been destroyed and some events were never recorded. Through our combined efforts many available records can be brought into use to solve some of our unanswered questions.

One important aspect of work to be done is searching the early history of the Callaways. This history will also prove valuable in establishing our relationship to each other. Often our homes and those of our relatives contain vast amounts of family history in the form of Bibles, deeds, old letters, etc. To obtain an authentic history of the Callaways these records are required. Some of these records will be published in The Journal.

It is essential that we become personally involved. Some have not returned the questionnaire which accompanied their membership acknowledgement. The return of the completed questionnaires is necessary in order to know what each will do to fulfill his responsibility. Perhaps we have asked, "What am I qualified to do?" Each of us has something of value to offer.

Our support may come from supplying records already in our possession, corresponding to acquire information, doing new research, or contributing money. We may choose to provide some special service. All efforts will strengthen our Association and help it become increasingly productive and respective.

Those of us willing to do original research can search microfilm or original records. Research may even be accomplished during vacation. Some of us will not be satisfied doing normal research but are more interested in the challenges provided by special research. This includes becoming expert in English records, reading Old English, and finding English Callaways who have pertinent family records. All research must be coordinated through our Association's Genealogist, Mrs. Sherman Williams.

We who are financially able must make substantial contributions. Funds, above those supplied by the membership dues, are required for hiring professional researchers where needed and for publishing data too extensive for coverage in The Journal. We will be unable to do the needed research and publish the findings, which will help each of us, unless we accept the monetary responsibility involved.

Through our genealogical and historical research we are uncovering a great and priceless treasure, our heritage. This legacy must be preserved for future generations.

J. Hobart Bartlett

FROM YOUR CORRESPONDING SECRETARY

Thank you for your interest and cooperation in helping to bring about The Callaway Family Association, Inc. The response from our prospective membership letters was overwhelming. In six months we have grown to be one of the larger family associations.

Some interest has been shown for more of the background on the founding of our Association. Therefore, I have abstracted some information from Anne Callaway's (Mrs. W.C. Callaway, Jr.) minutes made at the fourth workshop and meeting in Atlanta, Georgia:

"Dr. Bartlett gave a review on the beginning joint efforts. He stated that about eight years ago, he and Mrs. Sherman Williams began a correspondence from an ad in the Genealogical Helper in regards to their Callaway lines. Dr. Bartlett proceeded to call Dr. Jean Stephenson of Washington, D.C. who is one of America's foremost genealogists. Dr. Stephenson referred him to Mrs. Donald (Ruth) Philbrick as the most knowledgeable person on Callaways in this country. The information was relayed to Mrs. Williams who, in turn, contacted Mrs. Philbrick. At that time it was impossible for them to embark on a joint research program; however, Mrs. Williams did gradually accumulate additional material confirming Mrs. Philbrick's viewpoints. Ruth's cooperation and contribution of valuable material was an inspiration for continued cooperative work. In November of 1971, Mr. and Mrs. Williams and Dr. Bartlett began their first cooperative research in the Stanly County area of North Carolina. An intensive search was made in cemeteries and courthouses of Stanly, Anson, and Montgomery Counties. The week in the Stanly County area brought about a very important decision. It was that an overall survey of Callaway family history was essential, and that more information was needed on the migratory patterns and family relationships. To further these objectives, family workshops must be the logical answer. The first workshop was in Dover, Delaware during a week in November 1972, in which Ruth Philbrick was also a participant. The second was held in Raleigh, North Carolina during a week in October 1973, with five participants. The third was in Richmond, Virginia during a week in July 1974, with ten participants."

The fourth workshop brought about the formal organization of our Association. It was held in Atlanta, Georgia during the week of 15-20 June 1975, with the following participants: Mrs. Mary Callaway Akins, Dr. J. Hobart Bartlett, Mr. and Mrs. George Boardman, Mrs. Adolphus S. Callaway, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Callaway, Mr. and Mrs. W.C. Callaway, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. W.C. Callaway, Jr., Mrs. Joseph Pitt Chancey, Miss Juliet Cox Coleman, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Durden, Colonel and Mrs. Dan H. Johnson, Mrs. Mildred Callaway Lombardi, Dr. and Mrs. John T. Mauldin, Mrs. Donald W. Philbrick, Miss Mary Callaway Reid, Mrs. William W. Shaw, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. C.H. Sleight, Mrs. John W. Teepell, and Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Williams. During the first part of the meeting, seventeen of the above persons spent many hours searching records in the Atlanta Archives. At the close of the week, the attendees held a business meeting, decided to formally organize, and nominated and voted in your present officers. Some business matters such as membership eligibility, dues, constitution and finances were also discussed and approved at that time. Work is still proceeding on the By-Laws, IRS tax exemption status, The Callaway Journal, and future plans.

Since this might be my only chance to address all of you before my term of office expires, I want to use this opportunity to publically pay tribute to my fellow officers who helped me and have given so freely of their time, finances, and talent in order to make our Association a success.

Mary Sleight

TREASURER'S REPORT

Because of our successful membership drive, as of April 15, 1976, our Association was comfortably solvent and highly liquid. Aside from a small amount of stationery and possibly some stamps, our sole asset was cash in the amount of $4,265.06, as shown by the Statement of Income and Expense printed below. Except for small expenses incurred in connection with revising our membership solicitation material, this sum also represents the Member's Equity in the Association as of that date. However, we can derive small comfort from this because the year's major expenses will arise in connection with the annual meeting and publication of the first issue of The Callaway Journal, and both of these are in the future. They will no doubt deplete the Treasury by something over $2,000.00. No realistic projections for our financial position at year-end are possible, since it will largely depend upon whether one or two issues of The Journal are published and whether the registration fee covers the costs of the annual meeting. Early in the year we despaired of formulating a budget for the present fiscal year because of the many unknowns and lack of precedents to guide us and have thus far largely played it by ear.

It can be seen from an examination of the income statement that our major expense to date has been stationery and postage. Most of this expense resulted from our massive membership drive of last fall and winter. Presumably expenses for this purpose will not recur on this scale during the remainder of this year and next. Significantly, you do not find the usual telephone and travel expense items. This is because the officers and directors have paid their own expenses when traveling on Association business. Likewise numerous necessary long distance telephone calls made to expedite Association business, especially by our President, have not been charged to the Association. These items would be substantial, especially if travel expenses were payable to researchers attending work shops in distant cities and to officers and directors attending official meetings. It does not seem likely that expenses of this type can be made reimbursable by the Association as long as our basic membership fee is only $5.00. This, of course, limits service to the Association to those financially able to bear their own out of pocket expenses when telephoning or traveling in connection with Association business.

One income item, "Contributions for Specific Purposes," will be of special interest to members. This consists of two contributions, one in the amount of $12.50, the other in the amount of $100.00.

The $12.50 item was contributed by Helen L. Hart Marshall to be applied toward the cost of publishing a Callaway family history. We used her check to open a savings account, to which we are adding ten per cent of all dues received. This segregated fund has been designated our Family History Fund and will be used to defray the initial costs of publishing the History at the unknown future date when it has been written.

Mrs. Donald W. Philbrick (Ruth Lockey) contributed the $100.00 sum with the suggestion that it be used to purchase a copier for our Genealogist. We have therefore established a "Copier Fund," and are hoping other members will be inspired by her example to make additional contributions to this Fund. These machines cost over $300.00, and so we have a way to go. (Just make your checks payable to The Callaway Family Association, Inc., and mail them to me at The Riggs National Bank, 17th and H Streets, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006.) In making this contribution, Ruth wrote:

"For some time I have been interested in Sherrill's having some kind of copier, which would lighten her crushing load, save her steps and time . . . . In my case, and increasingly so in hers, people from all over the country have sent their valuable papers in the hope that I could solve their problems. It was not always possible to get at these requests immediately, and still I was uneasy until I could get these papers back on their way to the owners. Even though I could send in such papers to my husband's office to be Xeroxed, my 3M Copier has been a blessing, and I have been able to share much more material than I ever would have otherwise."

We have not yet provided for an audit of the Treasurer's books. This should be done annually, of course. It has been suggested that an Audit Committee appointed from the membership could examine the books and certify as to its findings, thereby avoiding the expense of an outside CPA. This is something the Directors and members must give some thought to.

For the time being it has been decided to use "The Ideal System" of bookkeeping for the maintenance of our financial records. This is a simplified system for organizations operating primarily on a cash basis and requires no prior bookkeeping experience.

The life blood of our organization, now and in the future, will continue to be the steady inflow of membership dues, renewable annually. It is hoped that all who joined for 1976 will, though progress will sometimes seem slow, keep the faith and renew their memberships when the inevitable dues notice arrives at year end.

EDITOR'S NOTE

The Acting Editor has only one thing to say — HELP! We need you to volunteer your assistance. Any of you with publishing know-how and special skills will be gratefully embraced by the current skeleton crew. Others who would like to participate in this area of the Association will be equally welcomed. Please step forward with alacrity so that The Callaway Journal can become the finest family publication in the world. The Journal is for you, about you and it needs your talent.

Formulation of editorial policy must, of course, await the appointment of a permanent Editor and an editorial board. An Editor and editorial board will be appointed after the election of officers at the annual meeting in October. It is important that all those desiring to participate in the publication of The Callaway Journal, whether or not planning to attend the annual meeting in October, notify the President of your area of interest in the publication. Please do this before the annual meeting. In the meantime, we hope you will find much of interest in our beginning effort.

REPORT OF MEMBERSHIP CHAIRMAN

Five hundred and fifty-seven charter members from 40 states, the District of Columbia, Canada and Japan — that was the tally when the charter membership drive drew to a close. Response to the letter sent out beginning the latter part of September, 1975 has been wonderful and gratifying. During the first week, seventy-one joined and each week thereafter the number of members continued to grow.

We began our drive with a list of names submitted to us last spring by interested people. On the application blank was a section asking that additional names be suggested. The members responded with from one or two names to the member who sent in fifty-four names! Letters of invitation were sent to each one. The secretary and membership chairman sent out a combined total of over 3000 letters. Some response came from an ad placed in the November, 1975 issue of The Genealogical Helper. Due to the tremendous interest and response, the deadline date for charter membership was extended to allow everyone an opportunity to become a charter member.

A list of the charter members follows. The names of those who have joined since this list was prepared for publication will be published in the next issue.

DEATHS

It is with sincere regrets that we announce the deaths of two of our charter members.

MISS MARY CALLAWAY REID, aged 73, of Atlanta, Ga., died April 21, 1976 from a cerebral hemorrhage. Miss Reid was one of the organizing members of The Callaway Family Association, Inc., attending both the workshop and business meeting in Atlanta last June. She was very enthusiastic about the Callaway family history and made a valuable contribution by her attendance at the workshop sessions at the Georgia Archives. She will be truly missed.

DR. GUY D. CALLAWAY, a retired physician of Springfield, Mo., died June 5, 1975 as a result of a stroke. Dr. Callaway had been interested in Callaway history for many years and a large number of our members were among his friends and correspondents. Many years ago, he compiled data on his own Line, descendants of John and Elizabeth Smith Callaway of Stanly Co., N. C., most of whom lived in Webster Co., Mo. Recently an article by Dr. Callaway on the log cabin home of his grandparents, Parham and Nancy Kirk Callaway, appeared in the Webster County (MO.) Historical Society Journal. His many friends and relatives mourn his leaving.

THE STORY OF A MAN AND A GARDEN

Cason Callaway and Callaway Gardens

(Editor's note: Though our elisions — numerous in number and substantial in content — have not been indicated, the following article in its entirety has been excerpted from an address given by Howard H. "Bo" Callaway at the "1965 Georgia Dinner" of The Newcomen Society, at which he was guest of honor, held in Callaway Gardens, at Pine Mountain, Georgia, on April 4, 1965. The words are all his; the discontinuity is ours, being the result of our severe cutting to reduce it to available space. The story of Callaway Gardens will be of special interest to our members because it will be the site of our 1976 annual meeting on October 1-3. There is, of course, no relationship or tie-in of any kind between Callaway Gardens and The Callaway Family Association, Inc. We have reserved space there at our initiative and on the same terms and conditions as any other disinterested organization might do, and no special concessions of any kind have been sought or granted.)

It is my privilege tonight to share with you one of those moments which gave my father so much happiness in the last decades of his life. As many of you who knew him are aware, his heart was in this garden. It was a dream which possessed him through all his final years, and now that he is gone, it has become a living, growing, tribute to his memory.

It would be almost impossible to capture in words my father's complex personality, for he was a man of many contrasts. It would be simpler, and more effective, to say to each of you, "Go and see for yourself what the gardens are. Once you have done this you will know far more about Cason Callaway, and the kind of man he was and the dream he dreamed and lived to see come true, than I could ever tell you." For it is clear to me that his more fitting eulogy is written in the trees and the flowers, in the lakes and woodlands and the green open spaces of the gardens, than in anything I might say about him here tonight.

The gardens as you see them today — the basic pattern of lakes and woodlands and flower trails and golf courses, were completed in a relatively short span of time. My father learned fairly early in life that he would not have many years to live and, feeling a sense of driving urgency, he poured all his resources and his energy into a crash program of development. The concept of the gardens as a place that would live and grow in beauty for generation after generation — "lasting as long as the world stands," as my father used to say — developed slowly, though, out of other projects that had captured his imagination for awhile.

The story of his interest in this place goes back to the early 30's, when he and my mother first came here hunting a quiet picnic spot, and found the place where they chose to live the rest of their lives. The story of the garden itself, and the rare combination of soil and climate and topography that make it unique in the world, goes back to the beginning of time. The 2,500 acres of the gardens, and the 30,000 acres surrounding it, lie on the northern slopes of Pine Mountain, a wooded hill rising 1,300 feet above the old shore line of what once was a prehistoric sea. Pine Mountain, the geologists say, is the oldest land on the American continent — the tail bone of a great Appalachian range that was worn and weathered and covered with trees and shrubs and flowers long before the Rockies were upthrust.

When my father and mother first came here, nearly all this primeval beauty of the farmland had been destroyed. A few generations of men in a few hundred years of struggle to survive, had cut out the big trees, plowed the slopes until the topsoil all had washed away, and then had gone, leaving behind them a wasteland of gullied red hills, cut-over stumpland and abandoned farmhouses.

Here and there, however, in deep ravines too steep to cultivate, and too rugged for the sawmillers, the natural beauty of the unspoiled land had been preserved.

One such place my father and mother had found many years ago, as they drove out from their home in LaGrange to find a family picnic spot. It was a deep ravine where a bold spring of clear water thirty-five feet across and equally as deep, boiled out from under a rock, flowing at a steady rate of 300 gallons a minute. Big trees grew around it that the sawmiller had never touched. The little stream that flowed out from it was pure and clear. And all around in the surrounding woods grew the wildflowers of the Appalachian Mountains.

Late in the 30's my father began to take the long view of his own career — to ponder what direction his own life should take, to wonder what he could do to make the world a happier place to live in after he was gone. In 1938, at the age of 44, he resigned from the mills. He never devoted himself to business thereafter, except as an advisor on the directors' boards of US Steel, Shell Oil, the Chemical Bank and Trust Company and the Trust Company of Georgia.

His life thereafter was wrapped up in what came to be known as Blue Springs Farm. Believing that "the best fertilizer a land can have is the footprint of its owner," he moved his family to the big log house near Blue Springs, and added some 30,000 acres of worn out farms and cut-over forests to his holdings. He set out with all the vigor of a young man just beginning a new career, and his first step was to restore the old tired land to productivity.

Visitors from all over the Country came to see what he was doing — including Louis Bromfield, the famous writer-conservationist of Malabar Farms. One statement a visitor made stuck in his mind. "Cason," he said, "this just goes to show what God could do if he had money."

He had done about all he could do at Blue Springs Farm. Men and machinery were available and my father, who liked to keep his own traces tight, as well as those of everybody around him, put these men and machines to work on the new project that was to enlist his interest and his efforts the remainder of his life. Along the creek he built the dams that created a chain of eleven lakes, ranging from 175 acres to little ponds he could throw a rock across. Cutting his core trenches down to solid rock, he trucked in thousands of tons of water-impervious clay, and built his dams. He did not put any pipes or valves on the dams, for the engineers told him that a dam so constructed would only last two or three hundred years. He wanted a dam that would last as long as the world lasted. He also knew that all the great man-made lakes in the world will some day fill up with silt unless properly protected. So he built a six-mile diversion ditch around the lake beds, to carry off storm waters, and he paved the little streams that led from lake to lake with field stone, to trap the silt and keep the lakes always clear. Around the lakes he built a nine hole golf course with broad fairways, where a lunge-and-hack golfer would find it difficult to lose a ball, and he kept the roughs barbered smooth.

The decision to make what was to have been quiet a hideaway for tired, and retiring, business men, into a public playground brought about a great expansion in his plans. To attract visitors by the thousands, lakes and a golf course, and pleasant vistas would not be enough. They would want a place to swim, a beach to bask on, fishing lakes, and a comfortable inn to stay overnight. They'd want to ride in boats, and water ski, and they'd want cottages where they could come and stay a week without it costing them their life savings.

With his head full of plans, he set to work. Outside the gates he planted the middle of the double lane highway with thousands of pink long-blooming roses, to catch the eye of the tourists whizzing south to Florida. Inside the gates, he graded the banks for lakes and brought in thousands of tons of clean white sand to make the biggest man-made sand beach in the world. Certain lakes were set aside for fishing lakes, heavily fertilized and stocked with thousands of bass and bream.

On a rise of ground above the lake he built a big open shed with a barbecue pit in the center where family reunions and Sunday school picnics could be held. He floated a big barge on the lake, where visitors could cruise like Cleopatra on the Nile, and two electric-powered houseboats which small groups could rent for private parties. He made little paddle boats available for sweethearts who wanted to drift off by themselves into the coves — and when they got into the coves they found the shorelines planted with tea olives, a flower whose fragrance my father always held was sure to make the heart grow fonder.

For those of even more sedentary nature there were the various trails through the woods by the water. Many of them led by places specially planted to attract birds, and bird watchers all over the South began to come to walk these paths. Others were botanical gardens in a natural setting — planted with a hundred different varieties of wild flowers.

These simple flowers, taken from the deeper woods, or from the garden's nurseries, were treated with the care a rose fancier might give a prized hybrid. The result is that spring in the gardens now shows the flowers of the region in all their glory — azaleas, laurel, holly, magnolia, pink and white dogwoods, and all the little forest flowers.

The magnificent magnolia drive visible from the highway is a little story in itself. Not long after my father and mother had moved to Blue Springs to live, she asked him to give her a magnolia tree — one, she said, "that would grow up and bloom before she got too old to climb the tree and pick the blossoms." With his usual generosity in meeting her requests, he gave her 5,000 tiny magnolia trees and now not only the Gardens, but many of the yards and woods of Harris County are filled with them and their descendants.

Inasmuch as many people today never see many fruits and vegetables growing, he planned a truly unique 7½ acre Fruit, Vegetable and Berry Garden. He said, "This is going to be the most productive 7½ acres, with the largest number of varieties of fruits and vegetables, in the Southeast." He thought we should use his knowledge of farming gained in his earlier agricultural experiments to develop a fine demonstration garden, and his aim was to guide visitors to select the kinds of fruits and vegetables which would be best for their own gardens. This has been done, and "Mr. Cason's Vegetable Garden" provides much of the fresh, succulent produce for the tables of the Clubhouse and Holiday Inn dining rooms.

Nearly everything my father had dreamed of had been accomplished, or was under way when he died in 1961. The plans for the Chapel had been approved, and it stands today, built of fieldstone and hewn arched timbers from the surrounding hills, beside a natural waterfall at the head of a little lake. The stained glass windows show the gardens in all the changing beauty of the seasons — spring, summer, autumn, winter. Dr. Norman Vincent Peale came down to dedicate it "to the glory of God, and in loving memory of Ida Cason Callaway," my father's mother.

When he passed away the contracts had been let for the first 50 cottages. Now there are 130. The Callaway Leadership awards bring 100 specially selected youngsters to the Gardens with their families every year. A new nine hole golf course has been added to the old course that my father developed. A new 18-hole course is being built this year along with a nine-hole par-3 course.

Whether he would have let us build the Holiday Inn we have built here since his death, I do not know. He might have thought it just a bit too fancy. But he would have loved its comforts. And, the profits from this Inn enable us to plant a lot of wild flowers, and feed a lot of wild fowl, and finance many other non-income producing projects that add to the charm of the Gardens. I think he would have approved of that.

To many of us it is one of life's greatest pleasures to get out early on a frosty morning when the quail are whistling, with a wide ranging bird dog to search out the coveys. My father never lived to hunt over this ground, but since his passing we have developed here what we believe to be one of the finest commercial shooting preserves for duck and quail in the Country.

In his mind's eye he saw here a beautiful garden, and he made it, and it will always be his, a reflection of his personality. His body lies outside the boundaries of the garden, in a massive mausoleum of granite, field stone and marble on top of a wooded hill near the Blue Springs that first brought him to this place. The simple inscription says, "To Know Him Was To Love Him." And those who knew him did love him. But in a larger sense his monument is this garden, and the beauty he created here. It will go on through the years, bringing peace of mind and a quiet happiness to generations still to come.

REMEMBERING
The Callaway Plantation
Washington-Wilkes, Georgia

The Plantation, which is owned by the City of Washington, is the result of a gift by Mrs. Katie Mae Arnold Hardin, and her children, of Forsythe, Georgia. The original gift was for eleven acres which included the red brick Greek Revival house and the family cemetery. The gift specified that the "old" Callaway house, located across US 78 from the "brick" house, was to be moved onto the city property and restored. This is a simple grey frame two-story house, designated as "Federal Plainstyle," which was built about 1817 by Jacob Callaway, son of Job Callaway, Sr. It is furnished with simple functional pieces typical of the period which were obtained mostly in the community. The existing buildings have all been restored and furnished. The old barn, which probably is contemporary the "old" Callaway house, was relocated further from the highway and completely restored. In all there are presently eleven structures on the property.

In 1969, the Hardin family made an additional grant of land in the amount of forty five acres. This acreage consists mostly of open crop land but contains some nice pine and hardwood forest. It has now mostly been fenced and contains a small herd of Jersey cows. Other land is planted to oats, corn, cotton and garden.

A hewn log kitchen, furnished with primitive pieces, was moved to the site from its original location ten miles north of Washington. It was possibly built as early as 1785, but the name of the builder is unknown. It is, nevertheless, representative of the type of home first occupied by the Callaway family in Wilkes County.

The dominant structure in the complex is the imposing red brick Greek Revival house, built about 1840-1845. It has survived in remarkably good condition, retaining most of its original plaster as well as doors and mantles. It is furnished with pieces from the period when it was built and occupied by Aristides Callaway and his family. The cemetery located on the property contains the graves of Aristides Callaway (1823-1900) and other members of the family.

The Callaways first arrived in Wilkes County, Georgia in the late 18th century, probably about 1784. The land on which the Callaway Plantation restoration is located was owned by Job Callaway and, over the years, by his descendants. It had never been out of their ownership until it was given to the City of Washington by the Hardin family.

An overwhelmingly successful event held last year on December 12 and 13 was the first annual "Christmas at Callaway." The Grey House, Brick House and Log Cabin were decorated in the traditional Christmas manner by members of the local garden clubs. Visitors were greeted with roaring fires in fireplaces, candles, kerosene lamps, hosts and hostesses in traditional costumes, popcorn popping, peanut parching and caroling groups.

Two other annual events are featured at Callaway Plantation. In the spring, a Bag Pipe Concert is given by the Atlanta Bag Pipe Band. Open House and Field Day is featured during the summer.

The Callaway Plantation, located five miles west of Washington, Georgia on U.S. Highway 78 across from the airport, is open daily from April 15 to October 15. The project is administered by the Washington-Wilkes Heritage Foundation. A Georgia Department of Industry and Trade Tourist Welcome Center is operated on the premises.

(Information for this article was furnished by James Turner Bryson, D.V.M., Washington, Georgia, chief administrator of the project.)

CALLOWAY CEMETERY, INC.

P. O. Box 446

West Jefferson, N.C. 28694

"As you may have heard, Calloway Cemetery is now incorporated under the name of Calloway Cemetery, Inc., and it has been found by the Department of Revenue of North Carolina to be a nonprofit, charitable corporation and exempt from taxation. The legal and practical effect of this is that it insures a continuing and safe means of caring for contributions made to the cemetery. The corporation will continue on and on and it has not only the responsibility of accepting and properly investing and caring for contributions but also the perpetual maintenance and upkeep of the cemetery.

"Some of you know that Tom Johnson died earlier this year. For many years he was almost solely responsible for the maintenance and upkeep of the cemetery and did a splendid job. We hope that many of you will see fit to make contributions to the cemetery in memory of Tom Johnson. (The Trustees)."

Those wishing additional information should write to Calloway Cemetery, Inc. at the above address.

[EDITOR'S NOTE: In the above cemetery is located the grave of Capt. Thomas Calloway (1712-1800) with its unique marker. It is told that Capt. Thomas and Daniel Boone were quite good friends and one day, while hunting near Calloway's home, Boone killed a deer. The deer fell across a long gray stone which Boone set up against a chestnut tree. Later, Capt. Calloway saw the stone and was so fascinated with it that Boone brought it to his home and carved upon it the initials, "T.C." So pleased was he that Calloway wanted it for a headstone at his grave, and there it was erected upon his death in 1800.]

FAMILY REUNIONS

Mr. Clair Edwin Calaway, 48 S. Elm St., Jefferson, Ohio 44047 sends the interesting information that "our Calaway family in the Western Reserve (Ashtabula County) have for the past 70 years held an annual reunion in Austingburg, Ohio on the 4th Saturday in August." They are descendants of ARALZAMAN CALAWAY who went to this area of Ohio from Connecticut along with one or two brothers.

The descendants of ARCHIBALD CALLOWAY will hold their family reunion and potluck dinner in the LaFarge, Wisconsin City Park on August 15, 1976. ARCHIBALD CALLOWAY, son of ELIJAH and ELIZABETH CALLOWAY, was born April 17, 1832 in Cabell Co., Va. (now West Va.) and died February 21, 1901 in Union Township, Vernon Co., Wisconsin. He moved with his parents to Edgar Co., Ill. where he married Harriet Weir in 1850. She died in 1877 in Wisconsin and Archibald was married again in 1879 to Juliette Springer Watters. There are descendants from both marriages.

Those wishing further information about the reunion may write to Mrs. Minnie Fanta, 542 Prairie Ave., Hillsboro, Wisc. 54634.

GENEALOGIST'S MESSAGE

The genealogical section of the Callaway Journal will be devoted to publishing material on the Callaway and allied families. The material will consist of original source records collected from courthouses, state and federal archives and foreign sources, and material submitted by members and others.

The original source records will be, for the most part those which have been, and will in the future be, obtained at Callaway Family Workshops and by volunteer researchers. We hope that members and others will contribute their family-owned records for the benefit of those who might be interested in them. Of particular interest will be Bible records, cemetery records, diaries, old letters and military papers. We do not plan to publish compiled genealogies at present. However, we will be pleased to have these for the Callaway Family Association files.

One of the goals of the Association is the eventual publication of a comprehensive Callaway History. In order to accomplish this goal every type of record on the Callaway and allied families, no matter how seemingly insignificant, will need to be checked, reviewed and evaluated. Our members' cooperation is earnestly solicited in seeking out family-owned records, as well as other types, for this purpose.

Members can also aid in the genealogical cause by their offer to do research in county courthouses and state archives. In some notable cases, the states have not collected their county records into a central archive, and it is therefore necessary to visit each courthouse to collect its records. This creates a problem involving both time and money, but the problem could be aided to a satisfactory solution if enough members would volunteer to visit their courthouse and those of surrounding counties. All records thus collected will be published under the name of the individual donating them.

All those who will volunteer for research in county courthouses and state archives should send their name and the name of the county and state in which they can work to the Association's genealogist. The genealogist will, in turn, send specific instructions for recording the data so that all research can be conducted in a uniform manner.

In presenting the records in these pages, some will be given verbatim and some, by necessity, will be in abstract form. Every effort will be made to give complete references for the benefit of those who might wish to order xerox of photostatic copies from the repository. The Callaway name will be spelled, as nearly as possible, as it is spelled in the original record, though sometimes the "a" and "o" are not easily distinguishable.

We also hope to avoid re-printing previously published records except in rare cases where it serves a special purpose or if the previously published material has not had wide circulation among Callaway researchers.

While it will not be possible to include records for all the diverse Callaway lines in each issue, every effort will be made to offer a variety. As time proceeds, we will be able to relate the various Callaway lines to each other and see a meaningful Callaway family history emerge. The genealogist welcomes correspondence regarding your Callaway problems.

Sherill U. Williams

ENGLISH RECORDS

This is the beginning of what we hope will be extensive research in English records with the objective of proving beyond doubts the names of some Callaways who came to America during the 17th century. The material presented in this volume is primarily from the south of England, however, our goal is to eventually cover every English county. The reader will note that some of our records are dated later than the 17th century. We are including these for the benefit of some of the membership whose Callaway ancestors arrived in this country at later dates.

Seventeenth Century English Wills

Prerogative Court of Canterbury

The wills of well-to-do people, who were usually large property owners, were probated at either the Prerogative Court of Canterbury for the southern counties or at the Prerogative Court of York for the more northern counties. The wills which follow are some of those of persons named Callaway which were probated at the Prerogative Court of Canterbury. It is probably well to remember that this wealthier class of people made up a small minority of the emigrants to America, but in the search for ancestors nothing should be overlooked.

The first will presented in this series has been copied verbatim so that the reader can see the manner in which they were usually written. The remainder will be given in abstract form. These wills were obtained from the English Records microfilm holdings of the Genealogical Department of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, 50 East North Temple Street, Salt Lake City, Utah. They were read from Middle English by John Hunt and David Kent of Arlington, Va.

THE CORNWALL PROTESTATION RETURNS - 1641

The protestation returns were the result of unrest that developed in the English Parliament at the onset of the "Great Civil War" between Parliament and King Charles I. At issue were religion and the right of Parliament to govern. Following the passage of the Protestation bill in both houses of Parliament in the early part of 1641, requiring that it be signed by every Englishman the age of 18 and over, householders and others, instructions were sent to the Sheriff of every county. The Sheriff and Justices of the Peace were to meet together and sign the Protestation oath, then it was to be taken into the various divisions of the county and administered to all the Ministers, Constables, Churchwardens and Overseers of the Poor. In turn, these officials were to collect the signatures of the inhabitants of their divisions. It was required that every male above the age of 18 sign the oath, and a list of those who did not, whether because of refusal, sickness or absence (oftentimes being at sea) be maintained.

In the case of Cornwall, the signing took place in the early part of 1642. The sheriff and justices of the peace took the oath on February 16, 1641/2. During the last week in February or the first in March, the parish priest read the protestation in church and the parishioners signed or made their mark before him and the other officials.

It is considered by some that one of the main objects of the protestation oath was to discover the number of Roman Catholics in the country. In Cornwall there were presumed to be 48 Roman Catholics.

This set of documents constitutes the most complete list of inhabitants of England until the 19th century when census recording was begun. The returns for Cornwall are the most complete of all the counties. Only those from four parishes are missing: Jacobstow, St. Austell, Truro and ST. NEOT.

Following are the names of Callaways who signed the protestation oath in the County of Cornwall. After some consideration, it has been decided to include all possible spelling variations of the surname Callaway, even though some may later prove to be other distinct surnames. The use of an "X" after the name indicates that person signed by mark.

CALLAWAY NAMES FOUND IN VIRGINIA
PERSONAL PROPERTY TAX LISTS, 1782-1800

In October 1782 the Virginia Assembly passed uniform tax laws applicable in each county. Two separate lists were to be maintained — one for land tax and another for personal property tax. The 1782 law provided for “a tax of ten shillings by every free male person above the age of twenty-one years, who shall be a citizen of this commonwealth; and also upon all slaves, to be paid by the owners thereof, except such free persons and slaves as shall be exempted on applications to the county courts, through age or infirmity.” The law also provided for a tax to be levied on all horses, cattle, wheeled-vehicles, billiard tables and ordinary licenses. The law further provided that the county courts appoint a justice for each precinct to take the tax lists. He was required to give public notice of the times and places he would receive the lists from the individual citizens. By the “20th of April next” (1783) he was required to deliver to the clerk of the county “a fair alphabetical list of the names of all free male persons above the age of twenty-one years” residing within his precinct and a list “of the names of all slaves, specifying to whom they belong, distinguishing in a separate column, such as are above the age of sixteen."

The Assembly which met in October 1787 made some changes in the tax law of governing the tax on free males and slaves. It had been found that the tax on free males above the age of 21 was too burdensome, thus a tax was levied against only those free males between the ages of 16 and 21. The tax on those over the age of 21, if already paid, was refundable and was otherwise not to be levied. This seemingly applied only to the year 1787. Also in this year [1787] a change was made in the manner of collecting the tax lists. Each county was divided into districts of equal population. Therefore, we have in each county lists designated as List A, List B, etc. Furthermore, the tax commissioner was required to go from house to house in his district collecting the lists and each taxpayer was required by law to swear to the accuracy of the lists submitted. The tax commissioner recorded the date on which he received each list. The various lists were collected and recorded in tax books, usually in alphabetical order to the first letter of the surname. However, by comparing the dates when the tax commissioner visited each taxpayer, it is possible to get a fair idea of which taxpayers were neighbors.

Our purpose for presenting these tax lists is to locate the residence of Callaways in Virginia during this period, 1782-1800. For this reason, we have included only the listings of the polls, omitting all other taxable property such as horses, cattle, wheeled-vehicles, etc. Beside the name of each person on the lists will be found the number of polls for which he is charged tax. Sometimes an "O" will be found by a name. This indicates that the household contained no taxable polls, but was probably taxed for livestock or other property.

The Virginia personal property tax lists are of inestimable value as a substitute for the missing early Virginia census records. Included in the lists presented here are the Callaways found in seven Virginia counties out of fifty two counties which have so far been checked. The tax lists from the remaining counties will be published in the next issue. The list for each county begins with the year 1782, except for those counties created after that date. In that case, the lists begin with the date of the creation of the counties.

The original tax books from which these records have been abstracted are available to searchers at the Virginia State Library and Archives, Richmond, Virginia.

ONSLow AND CARTERET: TWO NORTH CAROLINA COUNTIES

Onslow County is a coastal county and the now small town of Swansboro was once an important colonial seaport. It was one of the ports of entry for emigrants from the colonies to the north as well as from across the ocean. The county was created in 1734 from New Hanover County. The county seat is now Jacksonville. From 1760 to 1775, the boundaries of Onslow County were the Atlantic Ocean, New Hanover County, Duplin County, Craven County and Carteret County. Later, Jones County was created from Craven and became the northern boundary. The principal rivers of Onslow County are the New River and the White Oak River. Both rivers are landmarks noted in Callaway deeds. Today, Camp Lejeune, a United States Marine Corps Training Center, is located here along the banks of New River.

The White Oak River is the dividing line between Onslow County and Carteret County to the east. Carteret County, created in 1722 from Craven, is also a coastal county. A portion of its territory was given to Jones County in 1779, soon after its creation, and another part was annexed to Jones County in 1788. The county seat is Beaufort.

There has been some loss of records in both the counties of Onslow and Carteret. The loss seems to be primarily of "loose papers." Most of the bound volumes of deeds and county court minutes seem to have survived intact. Among the lost records are the Onslow County criminal court minutes, many estates records, orphans records, early tax lists and many of the marriage bonds. Most of the surviving original records of these counties have been moved to the North Carolina State Archives, Raleigh, for preservation and availability to researchers. All references given to the records which follow are the North Carolina Archives file and shelf references.

Onslow County, North Carolina Militia Returns, 1754

The earliest recording of the name Callaway in Onslow County, N.C. is that of John Calaway found on a militia list of 1754 in the Northwest District commanded by Capt. John Shackelford. The Northwest District is described as being "from the north east of New River round to the south west branch." [N.C. Department of Archives and History. Military Collection, Troop Returns, 1747-1859, Militia Returns, 1747-1769].

Onslow County, North Carolina Court Dockets

The Callaway name was not found again until 1757 when John Callaway was named several times in the Crown Docket. The crown docket has reference to criminal court and rather serves as an index to the minutes. It is unfortunate that the criminal court minutes for Onslow County are missing. Further references to John Callaway are found in the Trial Docket and the Execution Docket. These dockets reflect the various stages of the legal process.

From a study of the Wilder family records, it has been determined that the widow of John Callaway, Kiziah Wilder Callaway, later married Jacob Brown. They lived for a time in Onslow County and later moved into Jones County. The records were searched for further mention of the orphans of John Callaway, but nothing additional was found.)

North Carolina Land Office Records

Onslow County, North Carolina Tax Lists

The first complete tax list for Onslow County which is extant is the list for 1769. The lists for 1770 and 1771 also survive in their entirety, however the lists for 1772 and 1773 are missing. Beginning with 1774, there is a fairly continuous run of tax lists (up to 1790). In addition, there are a number of undated, fragmentary lists. Callaways have been found only on the lists for the years 1769, 1770 and 1771.

The tax lists for the three years that Callaways appear are poll tax lists. There are four columns for recording [1] the number of white men (age 16 and above), [2] the number of negro males, [3] the number of negro females, and [4] the total number of white and black polls. No land tax lists for these years were found.

Our abstracts of the lists, which follow, contain a few additional names of persons who will be of interest to some.

CONTRIBUTED

This section of the CALLAWAY JOURNAL will be devoted to publishing material sent in by members and others. When sending in material for the JOURNAL, it will be appreciated if each item is accompanied with a brief, dated statement of permission for publication, and signed by the donor.

There are many types of records which will be welcomed by the Genealogical Editor. A few are described below with a brief explanation of the best way to present them.

1. BIBLE RECORDS - When possible a xerox or photostatic copy of the records and the title page of the Bible should be sent. Sometimes only transcribed copies from the actual pages are all that survive. These will be accepted, also.
2. CEMETERY RECORDS - TOMBSTONE INSCRIPTIONS - When at all possible, contributions should be accompanied by the name of the cemetery; its location including town, county, state, street or road name or number (or other description of its location), date and by whom enumerated. Information and inscriptions of allied families should be included. It is also desirable to include the names and dates of those buried in the cemetery without headstones when the information is known. In this case, care should be taken to clearly state that there is no stone and the source of the information should be given.
3. FAMILY LETTERS - Of interest will be letters touching on family history, social life, medical history, economic affairs, biographical material, travel, migration and many other subjects. Xerox copies of the actual letter, when possible, should be sent, including a copy of the envelope or address fold (in case of really old letters).

4. MISCELLANEOUS ORIGINAL FAMILY RECORDS - Some families have preserved such records as surveyor's notebooks, store journals, physicians records, lawyer's case books, clergymen's records of births, deaths and marriages, diaries, deeds and wills from counties where the official recordings have been destroyed or lost, military and pension records and many other types of family documents. Again, xerox copies of the documents are desirable.

Mrs. Berenice Callaway Shaw, Oxon Hill, Md.

On file with the Bible Records at the Archives in Dover, Delaware, there is a photostatic copy of a sampler worked by Sarah M. Callaway. However, the record listed below was copied from the original sampler. In some instances Sarah wrote the first letter of the month in small letters, and with few exceptions wrote "the" as "th" which I have disregarded. (BCS)

76-1 Mrs. Helen Marshall, 2948 Bannockburn, Memphis, Tenn. 38128 needs a complete list of children of PATRICK CALLAWAY, b. 8-3-1798 in Madison Co., Ky., moved with parents (RICHARD CALLAWAY, JR., 1771-1849) in c1807 to Franklin Co., Tenn., m. SUSAN LEWIS on 4-6-1820, moved 1850 to Chickasaw Co., Miss., where he died 1870. Was my great grandfather, RICHARD CALLAWAY (b. 2-12-1823, Tenn., moved to Arkansas 1851, died in Civil War c1862), one of PATRICK'S children?

76-2 Mrs. William W. Shaw, 2505 Brinkley Rd., Oxon Hill, Md. 20022 needs information on JOHN CALLAWAY, son of PETER CALLAWAY, who bought land in Kent Co., Del. in 1787. In 1789 JOHN and ANN, his wife, sold this land to WAITMAN BOOTH. JOHN CALLAWAY is listed in the 1790 Reconstructed Census of Delaware. In 1792 JOHN again bought land in Kent Co., Del. However, in 1800 JOHN CALLAWAY is listed in the Stokes Co., N.C. census. In 1804 JOHN CALLAWAY of Stokes Co., N.C. sold the land, which he had purchased in Kent Co., Del. in 1792, to his brother, WILLIAM CALLAWAY of Kent Co. Did JOHN CALLAWAY leave Stokes Co., N.C. c1805-1815? If so, where did he go?

76-3 Mr. Homer C. Cooper, 145 Pendleton Drive, Athens, Ga. 30601 is preparing a MILNER family record and would like to correspond with anyone having MILNER-CALLAWAY connections. He is particularly interested in completing the family record of GEORGE W. CALLAWAY (1810-c1880) and wife, ELIZABETH B. MILNER (1815-c1889) who were married in 1832, Oglethorpe Co., Ga. They lived in the 228th Militia District (Bowling Green District) and the 230th Militia District (Woodstock District) of Oglethorpe Co. Does anyone know the location of their graves?

Mr. Cooper would like to obtain the following information for GEORGE W. and ELIZABETH B. MILNER CALLAWAY and each of their seven children: (1) date and places of birth, marriage and death; (2) the same information for each respective spouse; (3) places of residence and burial sites. The names of the seven children are: (1) JOHN MERREL CALLAWAY (c1835-c1866) m. ANNIE EPPS; (2) JAMES B. CALLAWAY (b. c1837) m. MARTHA WATSON; (3) MARTHA E. (MATTIE) CALLAWAY (c1841-after 1904) m. JOHN J. SIMS; (4) JONATHAN ISAAC CALLAWAY (1843-1929) m. ELIZABETH PHELAN of Tenn.; (5) ROBERT CALLAWAY (b. c1846) m. BLANCHE HUNDLEY; (6) WILLIAM CALLAWAY (b. c1848) m. MAMIE BARNARD; (7) LUCY CALLAWAY (c1855-c1920's) m. 1876, WILLIAM A. WEATHERLY.

76-4 Mrs. Charles M. Stone, 205 S. Rosemont, Dallas, Tex. 75208 wants information on the parents, wives and birthplace of SAMUEL CALLAWAY who enlisted at Pittsburg, Pa. March 1779, discharged Oct. 1780 at Pittsburg. He was on the tax list of Jefferson Co., Ky. in 1789-1790, and on the census of 1820 as a widower. In 1819, Jefferson Co., Ky. he applied for a pension for services in the revolution, giving his age as 66 years. The 1820 census of Clark Co., Ind. lists SAMUEL CALLAWAY and wife, both over age 45. In 1822, Clark Co., Ind., SAMUEL requested that his pension be transferred to Clark Co., Ind., giving his age as 70, and his wife's age as 52, both very ill. Was this a second wife? He died in Clark Co., Ind. Nov. 1, 1822. His children were: BENJAMIN, SAMUEL, PETER (b. 1782), THOMAS P. (b. 1790), CHARITY, RACHEL, ELIZABETH and MARY CALLAWAY.

76-5 Mr. Roy M. McAlister, 7536 Community Drive, Citrus Heights, Calif. 95610 would like to find the names of the parents of MARY (POLLY) HULET CALLOWAY, b. 5 November 1811, North Carolina and d. 8 Sept. 1880 in California. She married JOEL HUTCHENS on 31 December 1833. They were parents of six children: CHARLES NICKLAS (b. Lonejack, Mo.); JAMES BENJAMIN (b. August 1840, Mo.); TERESA (b. c1835); SARAH; MARTHA ELVIRA (b. 15 May 1844); and FRANCES HUTCHENS. JOEL HUTCHENS died in Lonejack, Mo. and the widow, MARY HULET CALLOWAY HUTCHENS, moved to California about 1870. Family members believe that she was reared near Yadkin, N.C.

76-6 Mrs. Mary Calloway Akins, Rt. 1, Box 96B, Bonifay, Fla. 32425 desires the birth date and place of SAMUEL CALLOWAY, died 1837 in Surry Co., N.C. Was he a son of FRANCIS CALLAWAY, SR. of Bedford, Co., Va. and Surry Co., N.C.? What was the maiden name of SAMUEL'S wife, MARY?

76-7 Miss Patsy Galyon, Rt. 2, Seymour, Tenn. 37865 is working on a Master's Degree in history at East Tennessee State University. The subject of her thesis is DR. MORGAN CALLAWAY (1831-1899), the noted Methodist minister and professor at Emory University. She would like to hear from relatives and others who have first hand knowledge of MORGAN CALLAWAY, SR. She also needs to locate the Georgia county where his will or estate settlement can be found.

PROBLEMS

Notes on Two James Callaways

From time to time confusion develops over the identities of two or more individuals bearing the same name. This has been the case with James C. Callaway of Bedford County, Va. and his nephew, Col. James Callaway, the iron manufacturer — and, the confusion has extended to include the daughters of both, named Mary. Several descendants of James C. Callaway have done a great amount of research in an effort to separate the records of these two James and their daughters, Mary. We are pleased to present a brief outline of their findings for the benefit of others interested in these families.

James C. Callaway was the youngest brother of Thomas, Francis, William and Richard Callaway who came to the area now Bedford Co., Va. in the mid 18th century. James C. Callaway died in Bedford County by 26 November 1767 when his wife, Sarah, filed an inventory of his estate in Bedford County Court. Since he died by 1767, this James did not participate in the Revolutionary War though several of his sons were soldiers. In 1773, Mrs. Sarah Callaway made the final settlement of the estate of her husband in Bedford County Court.

There has been some speculation as to the maiden name of Sarah Callaway. A query placed in the 26 March 1896 issue of the Louisville Courier-Journal says that her name was "Sallie Bramlett." Recognizing the apparent close alliances between the Callaway and Bramlett families, this is possible. Can anyone find a marriage record or other proof that Mrs. Sarah "Sallie" Callaway was a Bramlett? By 8 June 1781 when she signed a consent for her daughter, Mary (Polly), to marry William North, Sr. in Bedford County, Sarah was herself re-married to a Brown. She signed the consent, "Sarah Brown." The name of her Brown husband has not been learned and Sarah Callaway Brown has not been located in records beyond June 1781. Could she have moved, with her new husband, to another Virginia county or to Kentucky?

The known children of James C. and Sarah Callaway were: Flanders, Dudley, Chesley, James, Jr., Micajah, William, Edmund, and Mary.

The daughter, Mary (Polly) Callaway, was born 3 February 1765 in Bedford Co., Va. She married first on 8 June 1781, William North, Sr. He died in a few years after they had two sons, John and William North, Jr. About 1789, Mary moved to Kentucky and there married Joshua Baker about 1789/90, probably in Fayette County. She died in May 1852 in Owen Co., Ky. Mary Callaway North and Joshua Baker had several children, namely: Sophia, Paulina, Pamela, Jesse, Docia, Greenup, Bluford, Shelby, William, Malinda and Luitia Baker.

The "First Record Book of the Baptist Church on the Twins" (Baptist church at New Liberty, Owen Co., Ky.) contains a memorial to "Sister Polly Baker," entered into the records soon after her death, which gives a brief biography and a long tribute to her character. The church record book is in the library of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville, Ky.

It might be well to note here, also, that Joshua Baker, second husband of Mary Callaway North Baker, has become confused with another contemporary Joshua Baker. This Joshua Baker died in the spring of 1816 in Gallatin Co., Ky. where his will is recorded, giving the names of his children and his step-son, John North. He is not the Col. Joshua Baker who married Susannah Lewis, and who was a member of the 1799 Second Constitutional Convention of Kentucky, in spite of the fact that a historical marker, erected near the home of Joshua and Mary Callaway North Baker, bears this information. Col. Joshua Baker also died in the spring of 1816 (April), but his children mostly moved to Mississippi. It has been said that Col. Joshua Baker is buried at the Hermitage in Nashville, Tenn.

Col. James Callaway, the iron manufacturer, on the other hand, was a son of Col. William Callaway of Bedford Co., Va. and a nephew of James C. Callaway. He was born about 1736 in Caroline Co., Va. and died in Bedford County in 1809. He was married three times: (1) 1756, Sarah Tate, (2) 1777, Elizabeth Early, and (3) 1800, Mary Langhorne Turpin Calland. It is reported that by his first two wives he fathered 22 children, 14 of them living to maturity.

Among his many children was his daughter, Mary (Polly) Callaway, sometimes confused in family records with her cousin, Mary Callaway North Baker. This Mary (Polly) Callaway was born 28 April 1759 and died 1 November 1831. She married in Bedford County on 5 August 1781, Dr. Daniel Brown, of New York, who had served as a surgeon in the Revolution.

Those who would like additional information on the family of James C. and Sarah (Bramlett?) Callaway should contact our members, Mrs. George E. Morse, Mr. W.O. Krog, and Mrs. William L. Disponett.

Family records and letters now in possession of Ruth Lockey Philbrick

Other Marriages of the Children EXAMPLE: No. 3 Aaron Lewis BARNETT (2) 24 Sep 1857 to Margaret Ann STONE

The Lockey and Callaway plantations were a few miles apart in Jackson Co. Gr-gr-fa. Lockey sold his 700 a. to Gr-gr-fa. Callaway. My Lockey gr-parents then lived for some time on the orig. Callaway place. Naming exact birthplace of ch. is somewhat difficult!

INSTRUCTIONS: Print or Type. Capitalize all Surnames. Give all names in full, using the Maiden Name of each female. Use a separate form for each marriage of Husband or Wife. If there were no children born to this union write NONE in the space for the first child. For children having a Christening date instead of a Birth date, write (CHR) after the date. Give sources, listing type and location of record. EXAMPLE: Name: John David HERRON; Date: 23 May 1861; Place: Danville, Pennsylvania, VA.
