HISTORY

As early as 1848, a small number of Presbyterians living in Mount Airy made attempts to organize a church in this small foothills village. The Reverend W. N. Mebane spent eight months here as a spiritual leader but on December 9, 1848, said that it was inexpedient to organize a church at that time.

Presbyterians continued to meet, however, in school buildings and were led from December 1849 to June by the Reverend Monroe T. Allen. A study for Orange Presbytery in 1851 again found the time was not right for a church. Worship services continued in school buildings and with visiting ministers. After an attempt to organize in early 1858 did not succeed, on June 6 of that year, First Presbyterian became the second church to be organized in Mount Airy.

Charter members of the new church were Susan and Robert S. Gilmer; their daughters, Martha J. and Lizzie A. Gilmer; Mildred and Allen Denney; and Mary Dicks. The group met in schools and the Methodist church until enough funds were donated to start a church building in the winter of 1872. It was completed in the spring of 1873 on a lot given by R. S. Gilmer, where the church now stands. Though funds had been raised earlier, construction had been delayed by the Civil War and Reconstruction.

The Gilmer family and John M. Brown were largely responsible for erecting the church, a plain frame building. To early members the church was a wonderful sight with its flowered carpets, pine ceiling, ruffled curtains, and horsehair pulpit furniture. But the pews were straight, uncomfortable, and unattractive.

The church bell, originally hung in Mrs. Gilmer's stable near the church in 1876, was hung in the corner of the church in 1878. In 1887 a bell tower was added to the front. Mr. Gilmer was the church's only elder for the first fourteen years after organization. Because the church was small, several ministers who came left for larger churches after short stays. In 1902, Mount Airy Presbyterians helped organize a mission Sunday School in Flat Rock that grew into the Flat Rock Presbyterian Church.

The granite church that stands today was started in 1907 and completed in 1914 during the ministry of Dr. T. C. Bales. When construction started, the minister was the Reverend J. A. Gilmer, a nephew of the church's founder.

The women of the church held suppers to raise money for the foundation and the roof. The first communion service was given by Lizzie A. Gilmer, daughter of the founder. Part of the service, the baptismal font, is in use today. The rest of the service was given by members to honor Dr. D. S. McCarty on his retirement in 1965. The present pews were donated by Mrs. R. J. Reynolds, and the communion table by Mrs. W. E. Merritt. The Celtic Cross was donated by members in 1968 in honor of long-time elder C. B. Naylor.

The church dedicated an educational addition in 1951. In 1990 a new fellowship hall and Sunday-school sections were added for increased space. The Koinonia Room (a New Testament Greek for fellowship) next to the sanctuary was renovated in 1997-98. The organ was updated. New stained-glass windows in the Koinonia Room, hallway off the sanctuary, and choir anteroom increase the beauty of the church.

As early as 1848, a small number of Presbyterians living in Mexico City made attempts to organize a church. The small village of San Mateo, N. Mexico, was the first to have a church. The first church was built in 1850 and was called the San Mateo Church. It was a small, simple building of adobe and was the only church in the area at that time.

Presbyterianism was introduced to Mexico by the American missionaries who came to the country in the 1840s. However, it was not until the 1880s that the first Presbyterian church was organized in Mexico City.

Reverend John W. Brown, a Presbyterian minister from Decatur, Georgia, was the first to organize a church in Mexico City. He came to the country in 1880 and was the first to organize a church in Mexico City. He was the first to organize a church in Mexico City.
