

Spring

What is there to excite our admiration more than the lovely appearance of spring. All things seem to have awakened from a long sleep to have new life. All animal creatures are aroused to new scenes. When the chilly frost of winter that has been our companion for many long and weary days is but to depart for a time. Then we can say welcome spring with your green fields pretty birds and flowers how we love thy appearance. No more are we to sit around the fireside but are free to come out and enjoy the delight of spring.

Bettie. Dobson